Finns Retreat to Strong Second Mannerheim Line

HELSINKI, Feb. 26 (AP)—The Finnish high command today acknowledged that Finland had surrendered to invading Russians the strategic islands of Koivisto, armed with great coastal batteries anchoring the western end of the Mannerheim line.

CLIPPER BAN HITS BRITISH

NEW YORK, Feb. 26 (INS)—Pan American Airways' decision to drop Bermuda as a stopping place after March 15 on the eastward transatlantic flights of its big Clipper ships today dismayed British officials in the United States, who saw in it a possible partial breaking of the allied blockade of Germany.

By circumventing Bermuda, the clippers can fly to Lisbon, Portugal, and there connect with an Italian air line to Rome and thence, according to the fears of British officials, possibly open a new channel for the transmission of financial aid to the Nazis.

The Pan American announcement made no mention of the recent outburst of congressional indignation over action of the British in making seizure of American mail destined for Germany aboard the clippers and subjecting it to confiscation and censorship.

Improved weather reporting service, chiefly by two Coast Guard vessels, the Duane and Ribb, stationed in mid-Atlantic to radio the latest weather reports, a service which foreign flag vessels have discounted because of the war, has made it unnecessary to stop at Bermuda, Pan American Airways explained.

Henceforth, the clippers will fly non-stop from New York or Baltimore to Horta, the Azores, and thence to Lisbon. There they connect with an Italian air line operating between Lisbon and Rome.

British "Unconcerned" Over Clipper Decision

LONDON, Feb. 26 (AP)—The British foreign office said today it had "no great measure of concern" over Pan American Airways' decision to eliminate Bermuda on eastbound transatlantic flights and thereby avoid British censorship of U. S. mail at the island.

These islands, situated off the town of Koivisto, are 20 miles south of Viipuri, lying in the Gulf of Finland near the entrance to Viipuri Bay.

(Possession of the islands presumably would give the Russians a new advantage in their drive on Viipuri, normally Finland's third largest city, by aiding an attack from the sea as well as from land.)

REDS LOSE HEAVILY

Russian land forces already have driven on the isthmus itself up a railway as far as Kaislahti, only 7½ miles due south of Viipuri, according to the Finns' own admission. The Russians apparently are cleaning up the area between the railway and the coast.

"On the isthmus our troops have given up the Koivisto Islands," said today's army communique. "On Feb. 25 the enemy continued his attacks on the western part of the isthmus. The attacks were checked by fire from our artillery and infantry, and the enemy suffered heavy loss in men."

"At one town in this region, Saimenkahta, enemy attacks were repulsed after fighting which lasted a whole day," the communique stated.

DOWN RED PLANES

The Finns said the day "passed quietly" at the eastern end of the Mannerheim line, where the Russians last week launched great attacks.

At Kuhmo, northward near Finland's "waist," the Finns captured a "strong point," and "destroyed" a company of Russians, said the communique.

The Finns said that their air force had carried out bombing attacks behind the Russian lines.

Welles, Mussolini in Parley; F. D. Envoy May Visit Pope

ROME, Feb. 26 (AP)—Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles conferred with Premier Mussolini today after a "long and cordial" chat in the morning with Mussolini's son-in-law and foreign minister, Count Galeazzo Ciano.

The meeting between Il Duce and Welles, here on a fact-finding mission for Pres. Roosevelt to study conditions in war-torn Europe's principal capitals, was arranged quickly, the American having arrived in Italy only yesterday.

Welles is expected to proceed from here directly to Berlin, where he will be received by Fuehrer Hitler, in a day or two.

MAY VISIT POPE

There was a possibility he would visit Pope Pius XII tomorrow, although members of Welles' staff considered such a meeting unlikely now in view of the short time available to the State Department's No. 2 man.

Previous to his meeting with Il Duce, Welles had conferred an hour and a quarter with Ciano in the Palazzo Venezia.

Italians were much impressed with the length of time Ciano and Welles talked and said they believed they had made a deep examination of the problems confronting them.

Ciano also appeared to have been pleased by the conversation. He lingered 15 minutes over his farewell to President Roosevelt's special envoy and William Phillips, United States ambassador to Italy, Wells' only companion at the meeting.

The foreign secretary shook hands with each of his American visitors four times.

The top-hatted pair went from Welles' Hotel first to the royal palace to sign the King's register and then to Palace Chigi, the Italian foreign office.

Their glistening black sedan flew American and Italian flags.

The length of the conference, subsequent newspaper comment and the tone of a government communique all made it evident that the conversation had been of considerably more importance than an ordinary "courtesy call," which some Italian sources had predicted would be the extent of the first meeting before Berlin, Paris and London were visited.

UNIFORM HEADLINES

The talks were conducted in English, which the Italian foreign minister speaks fluently.

Later afternoon papers of the government-controlled press gave front-page prominence to the meeting, and each stressed "the length and cordiality" of the meeting. Considered significant of inspired treatment was the fact that each editor placed his story under a two-column headline.

Welles' presence attracted scant attention among Italians as a whole, most of whom were ignorant of it.

MANAGER APOLOGIZES

The Fascist press yesterday published nothing about the arrival of the President's representative, and Welles' hotel neglected even to fly the American flag, the custom when American Government officials stay there.

The manager explained apologetically he was not certain that the

MOTHER OF 7 DIES AFTER RESCUE IN BLAZE AT REVERE

Trapped in a second floor flame and smoke-filled room, a woman was rescued today in Revere, only to die from burns and smoke inhalation on the way to Revere General Hospital.

With her to the hospital went her rescuer, Fire Capt. Vincent McCauley, who collapsed from smoke inhalation after taking Mrs. Stephen Puleo, 49, mother of seven children, from the room where she was trapped, and turning her over to other firemen.

Capt. McCauley was revived by Hosemen Arthur Kane and Bart Lepito of Engine 1, on the way to the hospital, but was held there for observation.

CHIEF OVERCOME

Also overcome by smoke was Fire Chief Thomas McCarrick. He collapsed in a lower hallway and was carried to the street by some of his men, then was given first aid and sent back to the station.

Following his collapse, on the roof of a porch beneath the window through which he had passed the unconscious woman, Capt. McCauley was lowered to the ground on a rope rigged by fellow firemen.

Puleo, owner of the house, and two other occupants, Mrs. Hazel Karrins, and her 13-year-old brother-in-law, Fred Karrins, escaped from the first floor unscathed, but Puleo collapsed after her wife had been started for the hospital.

100 CHICKS ROASTED

He had discovered the fire after smelling smoke and leaving his second floor apartment to investigate.

When he reached the cellar, where he had 100 chickens in an oil-heated incubator, he was trapped by a burst of smoke and flame, but succeeded in getting out without harm.

So rapidly did the fire spread, however, that he was unable to regain his second floor apartment, where his wife was screaming for aid in the front room.

Smoke poured from the window of this room, and as Puleo was shouting for aid the fire apparatus, summoned by passersby, arrived. A ladder was hastily raised to the window and Capt. McCauley, first to reach the room, entered, seized the woman and passed her out to other firemen, as flames licked after him.

Emerging, he crumpled down on the roof.

Meanwhile, smoke from the fire, believed to have been caused by the incubator in which the chickens were roasted alive, rose so thick from the burning two-story structure that planes at Muller Field, adjoining, had difficulty in landing.

Leap Saves Couple

ELLINGTON, Ct., Feb. 26 (INS)—Apparently awakened by the screaming siren of a State police patrol car, Mr. and Mrs. Clem Rau, clad only in night clothes, leaped into the arms of State police from the roof of the Rau pavilion at Crystal Lake when it was destroyed by fire early today.

Girl Surgery Death Witness Is Missing

Bernice Purcell of Somerville, chief government witness in a case against two Arlington doctors involving a charge of illegal surgery, is mysteriously missing, the Boston Evening American learned today as the case was called for trial.

Charged with the illegal surgery in the trial, which went on despite absence of the witness, are Dr. Daniel E. Nyman and Dr. John A. Carter, both of Jason st., Arlington.

A co-defendant is Anthony Calameca of Park ave., Arlington, charged with being an accessory before the fact to the surgery allegedly responsible for the death of Miss Evelyn Alice Spencer, pretty 21-year-old South Boston girl.

BELIEVED TO HAVE WED

Asst. Dist. Atty. Rufus Bond, assigned to try the case, admitted today his principal witness was missing and said attempts in Canada to find her had failed.

New Cold Snap To End Here By Tomorrow

Frigid blasts from polar regions brought New England another cold wave today with sub-zero temperatures recorded throughout northern sections.

Boston was comparatively lucky, with an official temperature of 12 above at 7:30 a. m. The reading represented a drop of 31 degrees from the top mark of 43 of Sunday. No snow was in prospect, but warmer temperatures tomorrow will bring cloudiness, according to the forecast. The winds will shift out of the north to southeast or south by tomorrow, the weatherman said.

Mt. Washington reported an 80-mile wind and a 15 below zero reading today, as the coldest spot in New England. Newport, Vt., reported 11 below and Northfield 8 below.

JUDGE FREES MAN BUT WARNS GIRLS

A warning to girls of 18 to stay out of drinking places and to keep early hours was sounded in municipal court today where Henry McDowell, 30, of Holbrook was freed on a charge of attempting to attack Mary Ross, 18, of West Canton st.

Judge Jacob Spiegel, after testimony, found McDowell not guilty and said:

"It appears to me the complainant has been loose in her actions. If she doesn't want to get into trouble, a girl of her age should keep away from these drinking places and keep better hours."

McDowell's wife, with tears running down her face, testified he had always been of fine character and she believed him innocent.

A group of prominent Holbrook and Randolph church people were character witnesses.

It was alleged the girl had been visiting South End cafes in company with two men. She said she was pushed into a car and driven to a lonely spot where McDowell attempted to attack her. Arthur Anderson, driver of the car, said there was no attempted attack and that all three of them were singing when the girl was dropped off near her home.

At the conclusion of the hearing McDowell and his wife rushed into each other's arms, and mingled tears of joy. After an affecting scene they started down the corridor, passing close to where Miss Ross was standing with her mother. As McDowell went by a woman who was with Miss Ross swung her handbag at McDowell's head, but missed the target, and police hurried to her side and warned her against such action.

Knife Bandits' Haunt Hunted

Three men who held up Abraham Wolff, 32, meat dealer, in the doorway of his Mattapan home and robbed him of $530 after forcing him into their car, are believed hiding in Roxbury, police said today.

Wolff is under treatment at his home in Fessenden st., Mattapan, for numerous stab wounds in his back and arms.

He reported he was held up, forced into the gunmen's car, beaten and robbed, then hurried out in Columbus ave., Roxbury.

According to the police, his assailants overlooked $140 which Wolff had in a pocket of his shirt.

Confesses Holdup Of Marshall Field's

CHICAGO, Feb. 26 (AP)—Lieut. Kyran Phelan today said that Walter H. Hugh, 34, a WPA painter, had confessed the $18,000 robbery last Monday in the Marshall Field department store and involved a store guard, whom he accused as the instigator.

Police seized Hugh in his apartment last night and, Phelan said, recovered approximately $15,000. The guard whom Phelan said Hugh claimed engineered the daring holdup was hunted by police.

FIN. COM. SCORES DOCTORS IN CITY HOSPITAL PROBE

Although "ambulance chasing" by lawyers at City Hospital has been wiped out, a situation "somewhat related" exists at the institution, it was charged today by the Finance Commission.

The charge was contained in the 52-page annual report of the Finance Commission, in which sweeping recommendations were made, designed to protect the city from possible "Dowd scandals" and to save the money of taxpayers.

"Some doctors on the staff of the hospital," the report asserted, "are regularly retained by particular insurance companies."

INVENTORY NEEDED

"In this situation, an official report of a hospital patient's injuries may be biased without the knowledge of the patient, if it should happen that the hospital physician who makes the report is in the pay of the insurance company which has to defend a claim for damages by the patient."

The Commission, headed by Charles M. Storey, presented a somewhat dismal picture of the tax situation in Boston, but reported the Tobin administration has again reduced maintenance costs of the city.

In addition, outstanding debt obligations "continued to reach lower levels."

There is a vital need for a perpetual inventory of city property and supplies, the Commission said, declaring it "has tried—although apparently without success to date—to convince municipal officials generally of the need" for it.

No system for the control of the purchase, delivery and proper use of city property can be considered adequate without a perpetual inventory, the Commission said, adding:

"It is timely to state that if there had been a perpetual inventory of the property and supplies at the Charles at Jail, the need for which was revealed by the Commission in 1933, much of the scandal relating to the purchase and use of property and supplies at the jail in the past year would have been averted."

The Commission expressed belief that a current practice of the public works department in contracting for repair of water service pipes "is in violation of the City Charter."

HIRE OUTSIDE HELP

The Commission said repair gangs of the water division have been so reduced that the department has found it necessary to engage contractors for repair work.

The present practice, the Commission explained, is to issue an order as occasion arises to one of six contractors selected by the Public Works Commission "to assist the department forces to make service pipe repairs, payments not to exceed $400."

For this purpose, the city is divided into four districts. When no city force is available, work slips are issued to the selected contractor who bills for the work actually performed.

The amount involved on the orders issued during 1939 ranged from $200 to $680 per month, the Commission reported, while the total amount for the first 11 months was $42,000.

"VIOLATES LAW"

Such a practice violates the city law which requires advertised invitation for bids when the cost is expected to be $1000 or more, the Commission said.

The Commission recommended that the public works commissioner advertise for proposals on a unit price basis.

Reviewing the city's financial situation, the Commission said "it was of special interest that the reduction in the valuation of real estate was greater than the reduction of total valuation during 1939."

REALTY VALUES FALL

Real estate valuations had fallen off a total of $35,428,200 from the figure in 1938, while a $8,876,700 increase was reported in personal property valuations.

"A further reduction of valuations is still sought by many taxpayers and in large total amounts," the Commission observed. "It is obvious therefore that the downward trend will continue since there appears to be little prospect of any great offset caused by new construction."

New construction during 1939 amounted to $13,303,388, almost twice as much as was reported the year before, but the "value of new construction as given in applications for building permits in the last previous era of prosperity was normally $40,000,000 annually."

SLICE OFF DEBTS

Declaring there is "more consolation" in the debt picture, the Commission reported $4,300,894 shaved off the city's outstanding debt, estimated to total $151,552,888.

The Commission also found that in many cases equipment hired by the city "was used but for a fraction of a time for which it was paid."

The Commission reported that city officials are making progress in efforts to end this "abuse," but it recommended that "higher executives support more vigorously those minor officials to whom is assigned the authority to drop equipment from the payroll as the use of it is completed."

Minor officials sometimes "fear the consequences" of too great strictness in this regard, believing the owner of the equipment may have "substantial influence," the Commission explained.

Baby Suffocated In Her Carriage

IPSWICH, Feb. 26 — Another tragedy of infant suffocation was recorded here today with the death of Martha Trask, 6 months, only child of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Trask.

Police reported the child turned over in her carriage and suffocated after she had been left out doors to get some fresh air.

WIFE AIDS SLAYER IN PLAN FOR FIGHT

Although he had spurned her because of his avowed love for a 33-year-old widow, Charles E. Spencer, accused slayer of Dr. Bernhardt B. Glickman, was aided by his wife today as he prepared to fight seven police charges.

Steadfast in her devotion to her husband, Mrs. Spencer braved his earlier threats of violence against her and in a visit at his bedside found him reconciled.

An attorney, obtained for Spencer by his mother, made plans to defend him when he is arraigned on charges of murder and assault.

Because of psychiatric tests being made on Spencer at City Hospital, arraignment may be postponed.

Meanwhile, federal and Boston narcotic agents worked in both the South End and Back Bay trying to trace the source of various kinds of dope, including marijuana, which Spencer was quoted as saying he used.

A woman doctor, reportedly the dispenser of narcotic pills to the man, is sought in the Back Bay.

WASHOUTS PERIL SEA-FRONT PROPERTIES IN PLYMOUTH

PLYMOUTH, Feb. 26—"Ol' Debblil" Sea has chewed hungrily away at some of this historic community's most valuable ocean-front real estate it was revealed today, as town fathers and engineers of the State Public Works Department planned costly defensive measures extending into future years.

Immediate concern of property owners and state and town officials is a huge, 125-foot washout near the Pilgrim Hotel on Route 3 between Plymouth and Bourne.

Large sections of the already crumbling sea wall there were carried away by the gale and blizzard of Valentine's Day.

SHORE WASHED AWAY

Pounding surf and the fury of the storm undermined a wide area of land back of the hotel and close to several summer cottages.

Since the blizzard, this land has fallen and been washed into a huge gully of ever-growing proportions.

Already menaced is one cottage owned by the hotel and other nearby structures seem likely to have their foundations dangerously weakened.

Selectman James A. White said a move would be made at the March town meeting to have the town appropriate $3000 immediately for protective work at the scene of the washout.

PLAN $12,000 JOB

This appropriation would be matched by another $3000 contributed by property owners, and by a State appropriation of $6000, according to the present plan.

The total of $12,000 thus obtained would be spent this year to provide a substitute for the damaged sea-wall.

Selectman White said he believed a surf barrier of piled rocks would be put in place rather than an attempt made to restore the wall.

He said this year's projected $12,000 expenditure would be only the first of similar or larger sums to be spent annually for several years to come.

Spanish Ship Guarded Here

The second Spanish ship to arrive here since the end of the civil war in that country, the Mar Tierreno, reached the Mystic docks, Charlestown, today, and was immediately placed under guard.

The guard was assigned to prevent any attempt on the part of those aboard from violating the immigration laws. Immigration officials were suspicious of four men aboard, listed as crew members.

The ship immediately began loading 4600 tons of scrap iron to take back to Cadiz.

Its officers tol of a hazardous 25-day crossing. They said conditions in Spain were still under control of the military.

They said also that Germany had received large quantities of food in payment for services Hitler gave Franco in defeating the Loyalists.

Immoral Book Ring Head Guilty

Samuel Allman, alleged New York "brains" of a ring engaged in New England-wide distribution of obscene literature, pleaded guilty to a conspiracy charge in Federal Court here today.

He was held in $3000, pending sentence. It was expected final disposition of his case would await trial of four other defendants.

Three of these are serving Deer Island jail terms on stage charges. The fourth, Andrew "Starface" Zinn of New York, was arrested with Allman on secret federal grand jury indictments returned here.

Action against the alleged ring was taken after police seized 200 pounds of books, magazines, and pictures in a Boston lodging house.

Quad's Death Brings Problem

NAUVOO, Ala., Feb. 26 (AP)—The death of 41-day-old Hope Short, one of the quadruplets born near here, multiplied financial problems today of a committee chosen to aid in handling the infants' affairs.

A $35,000 contract with a milk firm was cancelled and plans for building a permanent home for the quads and their five brothers and sisters, children of sharecroppers, were held in abeyance.

Hope, who died of bronchial pneumonia in a Jasper hospital Friday night, was buried yesterday.

'L' Car Crushes Auto

A 62-year-old Brighton autoist narrowly escaped death or serious injury today when a Boston Elevated trolley car, in-bound in Commonwealth ave., Allston, crushed his sedan against a snow-bank, trapping him inside.

The driver, Louis Haner of North Beacon st., was finally extricated, unhurt, through a window of his wrecked auto.

The accident occurred at Commonwealth ave. and Allston st. It tied up rush-hour traffic for more than half an hour and delayed thousands of store-and-office-bound workers.

Twelve two-and-three-car El trains were stalled in the jam before the Haner auto could be towed off the track.

Police said Motorman Joseph Flaherty, operator of the car which hit Haner's sedan, reported his brakes failed to hold.

Aronson Love Suit In Hands of Jury

After a charge by Judge J. Arthur Baker in Superior Court, the jury today took under deliberation the $50,000 alienation of affections suit brought by Harold Aronson of Summit ave., Allston, against the parents of his divorced wife.

The suit named as defendants Abraham Schinsky of Commonwealth ave., wealthy Back Bay furrier, and his wife, Cella, and charged that they had alienated the affections of Mrs. Frances Aronson, with whom Aronson eloped in 1933.

Counsel for the aged couple had branded Aronson as only "a seeker of gold." It was charged that he cared nothing for his wife but simply was making one last attempt to "line his pockets with money at the expense of his ex-parents in law."

In his suit, Aronson charged that the father and mother had induced their daughter to leave him and seek a divorce.

Mrs. Aronson testified that she was hypnotized by her husband into a runaway marriage and that she went to New Hampshire under "mental force."

She said she was infatuated rather than in love with him and that his later acts of alleged abuse killed any affection she ever had for him.

Wife Finally Sees Young in Jail

TOKYO, Feb. 26 (INS)—For the first time since his arrest on Jan. 21, Mrs. James R. Young, wife of the International News Service manager in Tokyo, was permitted to visit her husband in Sugamo penitentiary today.

Five policemen stood by as Young and his wife met and embraced for the first time in five weeks. Mrs. Young had expected the correspondent's release today but some unforeseen delay occurred, although she advised that his questioning by the local district attorney had "eased markedly."

She said she found Young's health and morale good despite the rigors of his long confinement. Japanese authorities have manifested keen interest in American press reaction to his detention, she said.

Young was taken into custody following his return from a 9000-mile tour of China on the charge that his news dispatches violated certain sections of the Japanese military code.

Pretty Dancer Bride Of 'Benny Ginsburg'

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 26—Benny Gaines, better known to Bostonians as Benny Ginsburg, admitted his marriage to Joan Abbott, pretty dancer, today and then dashed off on a belated honeymoon.

Gaines disclosed he was wed at Key West on Feb. 3, not long after he was divorced by his wife in the Florida courts.

Now a partner with Jack Dempsey in the Dempsey-Vanderbilt Hotel, Gaines formerly owned the Club Mayfair in Boston.

It was in the latter nightspot that he first met Miss Abbott when she was booked for a dancing engagement.

"We're married and that's all there is to it," he declared, "I'm not going to say any more."

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 26 (AP)—Oliver Hardy is free to marry again, but his lawyer, Benjamin Shipman, declares the big film comedian hasn't anybody in mind at the moment.

"He just decided it was about time to get the final divorce papers," Shipman explained.

BILL CUT 4 MILLION IN HOUSE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26 (AP)—The House appropriations committee granted an additional $60,000,000 for farm benefits payments today in approving a $90,069,139 deficiency supply bill.

At the same time, however, the committee cut presidential estimates for the measure by $4,020,791, bringing the total congressional cuts off President Roosevelt's requests to $274,000,000 for this legislative session. The bill contained funds to meet unexpected current requirements of various government agencies until July 1.

In asking the $60,000,000 now, Sec. Wallace had proposed that next year's fund for farm benefits be reduced the same amount.

REQUESTS SLASHED

The total in the deficiency bill included $90,000 for the pay of 45 secret service agents and five clerks to guard the President and his family "in view of the conditions in this country arising as a result of wars in Europe."

Principal cuts were $1,000,000 each from a proposed $2,000,000 fund for insect control, from $8,000,000 asked for Grand Coulee Dam, Washington and Oregon, and from $6,000,000 asked for the Central Valley project, California.

The committee also whacked $50,000 off a War Department request for "urgent" work at the San Diego, Cal., harbor.

HAS MONEY ENOUGH

In the cases of both Grand Coulee and Central Valley, the committee said it believed the sums it allowed were sufficient to carry forward construction work until new appropriations become available after next July 1.

In addition to the various sums appropriated, the committee gave the Works Projects Administration authority to use an additional $3,000,000 from funds previously provided for administrative expense. The committee said that in holding WPA to $50,000,000 for this class of expenditure it had been "too drastic."

Among the items approved was $1,081,000 for the Department of State in connection with the repatriation of United States citizens during the European crisis last fall.

REWARD FOR HONESTY—Gazing longingly into pet shop window, Francis Ahern, nine, of Brighton, wished he had a dog. Then, he found pocketbook containing $15. Taught to be honest by his patrolman father, Francis turned his find over to police . . . and as a reward received a Scotch terrier pup, gift of City Councilor Michael J. Ward. Mrs. Ward (above) is shown presenting the pup.

Harvard Man Favors Dowry

The Europeans have the right idea in passing out a dowry with their marriageable daughters.

Such is the contention of Dr. Donald Macomber in a lecture at Harvard Medical School in which he decried modern birth control methods and stated they are to blame for an alarming increase in sterility.

"Parents should give some financial assistance to young people and help them raise a family," Dr. Macomber declared.

"Europeans and their dowry methods work out well. The idea in America that when young people marry they should stand on their own feet is all wrong because it often precludes the opportunity to raise a family."

"Many young couples, because of economic problems, are forced to wait for five years before having children. Often it then is too late and they are confronted with sterility."

Rites Planned For Mrs. Clark

Funeral services for Mrs. Dorothy Chapman Clark, wife of E. Everett Clark, state supervisor of education, will be held at the Church of the Good Shepherd, Auburn st. and Russell ave., Watertown, Wednesday, at 2 p. m.

And dramatic deaths, died after a long illness at the Baker Memorial Hospital. She was born in London, Eng., the daughter of Henry G. Clark, British symphony orchestra director.

Beside her husband she is survived by a daughter Jane, junior at Mt. Holyoke College and a son, John, of Brattleboro, Vt. Interment will be at Nashua, N. H.

Edison Asks Merger Of 2 Navy Bureaus

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26 (AP)—Secretary Edison today proposed consolidation of the navy's bureaus of repair and engineering into a unit to be called the bureau of ships.

He told a House naval subcommittee this would be in the interest of efficiency and economy, adding that "the most important result will be that better ships will be obtained and national defense will be enhanced."

Asks Fund to Probe State Job Salaries

A resolve which would authorize a $5000 investigation of salaries paid state officers and employees with a view to revision in the interests of economy and efficiency, was filed at the State House today by Rep. Colin J. Cambron of Amesbury.

It will come up before next year's legislative session because of the new biennial system whereby the Legislature meets every two years.

Glamour Boy Craze Stirs Florida Town

TAMPA, Fla., Feb. 26 (AP)—Parents of half a dozen high school youths were disturbed—and bewildered—when the boys came home with hair sets, permanent waves, henna rinses and other products of milady's beauty parlor.

Mothers met with little encouragement when they tried to put their feet down.

"But mother," one husky football player pleaded, "Sam already has a permanent, and why can't I?"

The urge for glamour was started last week for no apparent reason. Waves, "sets," and at least one bleaching job appeared in school Friday.

C. Phil Peters, principal of Plant High School, where the outbreak occurred, commented:

"What boys do to their hair with the permission of their parents is outside my jurisdiction. It seems sort of silly, but I hope they never do anything worse."

EMBARGO ON 3 HUB SHIP LINES

The three shipping lines which serve Boston from Southern ports now affected by a longshoremen's strike today declared an embargo on all freight to and from those cities.

Merchants & Miners, Clyde-Malory and Savannah lines took the action to avoid any conflict with local longshoremen, although Daniel J. Donovan, vice-president of the International Longshoremen's Association, said the strike would not affect Boston workers.

Ports south of Wilmington, N. C., are tied up by the strike, which is the result of the refusal by five lines to grant 10 cents an hour increase to dock workers. Ports north of Wilmington are unaffected, although if attempts were made to land freight at any of them from the strike affected centers the longshoremen would become involved.

The first ship in Boston to be affected by the strike was the St. Louis of the Ocean Steamship Co. line. She will be delayed until arrangements to handle cargo bound for Savannah are completed.

The Eastern Steamship Co., which connects at New York for southern points was still running boats today.

Hull Pleads For Facts as Aid to Peace

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26 (AP)—Secretary Hull described continuance of the reciprocal trade program today as necessary to help establish sound world conditions after the European war.

Jubilant over House approval of the Administration bill to extend the trade agreements act for three years, Hull told the Senate finance committee:

"The need for keeping alive the principles which underlie the trade agreements is crucial now, during the war emergency, and will be of even more decisive importance after the war.

Opponents want to require Senate ratification of each trade agreement, but Hull declared:

"The only result (of such requirement) under existing conditions would be to make the program entirely unworkable.

"The triumph or defeat of liberal trade policies after the war, will, in large measure, be determined by the commitments which the nations will assume between now and the peace conference.

"At the termination of hostilities, there will be an unprecedented need throughout the world for vastly increased production of useful goods. Only if this vital need is met can our country and all countries hope for full employment and higher living standards."

Chinese Plan New Attack on Nanning

HONGKONG, Feb. 26 (AP)—Japanese military dispatches today reported Chinese were massing in Kwangsi province, South China, for another attempt to recapture Nanning, the provincial capital.

Chinese reports said 1000 Japanese were killed and eight armored cars and two field guns destroyed in sharp fighting at Wutang, 15 miles northeast of Nanning, Saturday.

2 Officers Hurt On Mercy Dash

Two Metropolitan police officers, on their way to a hospital to give their blood for a brother patrolman's mother, were severely injured today in an auto crash at Commonwealth ave. and Clarendon st., Back Bay.

Their cruiser, crossing the avenue, and a car which police said was driven by Arthur Caggiano, 37, of St. Andrew's rd., East Boston, collided at the intersection.

Patrolman Charles E. Blood, 42, of Hall ave., Somerville, was rendered unconscious. He was rushed to Massachusetts General Hospital.

His companion, Patrolman Francis E. Sexton, 39, of Lowden ave., Somerville, received numerous bruises. Caggiano was taken to City Hospital for treatment of head cuts.

Both officers were en route to the Massachusetts Memorial Hospital in response to a call for blood donors for Mrs. Nellie Hannan, mother of Patrolman Arthur Hannan of the Lower Basin station.

Six other patrolmen reached the hospital in time to give their blood in the transfusion.

Reds See U. S. War on Europe

MOSCOW, Feb. 26 (AP)—War between the United States and Europe is a future chapter of the capitalist world, the government newspaper Izvestia predicted today.

"In the meantime," it said, "conflict is raging on world markets where America is victorious and has succeeded also in exacting from Europe a colossal gold indemnity without conducting real war."

Izvestia said the United States' successes had caused a fiercer economic struggle among European countries and that had precipitated the present war.

"Under the camouflage of 'war for democracy and freedom,'" it concluded, "England wages war aiming to weaken, even annihilate, Germany, its most dangerous European competitor."

F. D. FACES TESTS ON 3D TERM PLANS

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON

(International News Service Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26 (INS)—President Roosevelt today faces three major political tests that should provide a public answer to the third term question within another six weeks.

These tests are the Democratic Presidential preferential primaries in New Hampshire (March 9), Wisconsin (April 2) and Illinois (April 9).

His name is entered irrevocably in the New Hampshire and Illinois primaries, and he has until March 1 to stay in or get out of the Wisconsin test.

SEE 3D TERM AMBITION

The President was plunged into these contests without declaring his 1940 intentions, and solely by remaining silent while his faithful followers initiated the third term campaign.

His silence is being interpreted more and more as committing him to a third term. His failure to withdraw his name from the Illinois primary by Saturday midnight was cited as proving his third term ambitions.

Sen. Burton K. Wheeler, Montana liberal, took this view with others. He said:

"I regard it as unmistakable evidence that he is a candidate for renomination. That is the only way the American people will interpret it."

PRIMARIES TO BE TEST

But the President has hidden the secret of his intentions from even his most intimate advisers. Some of the insiders say he is not a candidate (except in event of a new international emergency involving the United States) but intends to control the Democratic convention and nominate a New Dealer as his successor.

Whichever group is correct, the New Hampshire, Wisconsin and Illinois primaries should give a pretty clear picture of his chance of winning election if renominated.

In New Hampshire, the President's is the only name entered in the Democratic primary. Sen. Styles Bridges is entered alone in the Republican primary.

The balloting should give an indication whether the Democrats can hold New Hampshire in their victory column with Roosevelt heading the ticket. If Bridges should get more votes in the Republican primary than Roosevelt does in the Democratic, it would be a stiff blow to the third termers.

In Wisconsin, the President may be defeated by Vice-President John N. Garner in the Democratic primary. In that state, there are two Roosevelt slates of delegates entered against one Garner slate.

There is the possibility, too, that Wisconsin progressives will follow the lead of Robert M. La Follette and shun the Democratic primary.

In Illinois, the politicians will watch to see whether the President retains his previous great vote-getting strength. In 1936, the President carried Illinois by 712,000 and in 1932, he won it by 450,000.

Call F. D. Candidacy In Illinois Illegal

CHICAGO, Feb. 26 (INS)—George Lavin, candidate for the Republican nomination for congressman-at-large from Illinois, revealed today he had written President Roosevelt to the effect his candidacy in the Illinois preferential primary April 9 would be illegal.

Lavin said he had written the chief executive he could not, under the law, permit his name to remain on the primary ballot without a signed statement from himself endorsing his candidacy.

At the same time, Lavin said, he mailed letters to Gov. Henry Horner and other members of the state primary certifying board warning them they would be violating the law if they certified the President's candidacy without his signed statement.

Today Farnum represented the Bell Linen Service, Inc., of Bristol at South End.

Charges in the suit, which is returnable next Monday for hearing, were similar to those filed last week in a suit brought by Farnum for the Suffolk Linen Service Co., owned by Thomas C. and George L. Stretch, brothers.

It is alleged that Walter Timilty was sometimes accompanied by police officers while soliciting business from owners of cafes, tap-rooms, entertainment places, and others, "depending on the good will of the police" in conducting their businesses.

The suit charges police coerced businessmen into taking their business away from other firms and giving it to Walter H. Timilty's company because:

"Those solicited reasonably were led to believe as a consequence of said police intervention they would incur the hostility and ill-will of members of the police department charged with the supervision, observation and inspection of the conduct of their business or some feature thereof."

The bill also charges that high police officials went so far as to summon businessmen to police station, there to tell them to give their patronage to Timilty.

Both the commissioner and his brother denied the charges.

Boys Flee Truant Officer, Leap to Death

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Feb. 26 (AP)—Two youths fleeing from a juvenile officer, jumped into the Kanawha river today and drowned. Thomas H. Robertson, Kansas County juvenile officer, en route from Dunbar to Charleston, saw the boys and asked them why they were not in school. The boys said they had missed the school bus. The officer opened his car door and offered to take them to school but the youths ran toward the river and leaped in.

In the Cannon Mountain Aerial Tramway, Franconia Notch, N. H., Bob Bourdon (above) enjoys a slow-burning Camel. "No speed for me in my smoking," says this ski champion. "Camels are slower-burning and give me extra mildness, extra coolness, and extra flavor."

"THE faster the going, the more fun in skiing," says Bob Bourdon. But he has a different angle on cigarettes. When Bob says: "Slow burning is my guide to more mildness, more coolness, and more flavor," he's putting the stamp of actual smoking experience on the laboratory findings of science.

Fast burning in a cigarette means heat. Nothing dulls the delicate elements of cigarette flavor and aroma so surely as excess heat. There's little pleasure or comfort in a hot, flat smoke in which the flavor has been burned away. The extra mildness, refreshing coolness, and that smooth, mellow "I'd-walk-a-mile-for" flavor of Camels are confirmed by recent scientific tests, in which Camels burned the slowest of the sixteen of the largest-selling brands tested! (See panel at left.) So, change to Camels and enjoy extra pleasure and extra smoking.

Smokers who live in communities where certain state cigarette taxes are in effect can save the cost of the tax—and, in some instances, more—through smoking Camels. (See panel at left.) Brotherhood Drive Given New Spurt

The Brotherhood Day drive to resist demagoguery and tyranny moved forward today under the endorsement of President Roosevelt and leading citizens of Massachusetts.

Catholic, Protestant and Jewish leaders joined in bringing a Sabbath denunciation of all breeders of religious and racial hatred as un-American and not to be tolerated in the United States.

Gov. Saltonstall, Chief Justice John P. Higgins, Judge Abraham E. Piranski of the Massachusetts

Superior Court and Oscar W. Hausmann, president of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, spoke over the radio under the auspices of the Massachusetts Committee of the National Conference of Christians and Jews.

Pointing out that the United States "more than any other country in the world is built upon the brotherhood of many peoples and the fatherhood of freedom and righteousness," Gov. Saltonstall declared it fitting that more than 1000 American communities throughout the country are celebrating Brotherhood day.

"All of us, Catholic, Protestant and Jew, Irishman, Anglo-Saxon, Latin and Semite, came to this country and to this commonwealth for the same reason, because America spelled so many things, religious freedom, equal opportunity for all, respect for the dignity of man and the right to the pursuit of happiness," he said.

Chief Justice Higgins denied any individual the license to breathe prejudice and hatred into the hearts of his fellowmen. Hausmann urged Americans to dramatize the cause of good will and better understanding, asking all Americans to "answer the dynamic, brutal apostles of racial hatred and discrimination in the same terms as they have propagated."

"The celebration of Brotherhood Day," Judge Piranski declared, "is a renewed affirmation of the American people's adherence to democracy and the American way of living."

See Star Show Now Or Wait 40 Years

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 26 (AP)—Dr. Dinsmore Alter, director of Griffith Observatory, estimates it will be "at least 40 years and probably longer" before six planets will again be grouped together in the western sky as they are today.

"It is the first time so many have appeared together in 60 years," he added.

This gives an idea how rare is the display which may be viewed daily anywhere in the United States shortly after sunset for the next two weeks.

Five of the planets, Mercury, Jupiter, Venus, Saturn and Mars, can be seen with the naked eye. The sixth planet, Uranus, is too faint to be viewed without a small telescope. Neptune and Pluto also are in the western sky now, but visible only through strong telescopes.

165 YEAR DAY

Astronomers estimate that Mercury's year is only 88 days long, while Neptune's year runs to nearly 165 earth years. They have, as yet, been unable to determine the length of a day on Mercury and Venus.

A day on Jupiter, the largest planet, runs about 9 hours and 55 minutes, while Mars' day is just 37 minutes longer than the earth's 24 hours.

Even if they had atmospheres containing oxygen, most of the planets are either too hot or too cool for human habitation.

Dr. Edison Pettit and Seth B. Nicholson of Mt. Wilson observatory found the temperature of Mercury, which is nearest the sun, to be about 621 degrees Fahrenheit.

LIFE ON MARS?

The temperature of Venus was placed at about four degrees below zero, and that of Mars at nine below, but rising in the equatorial region to a little above freezing.

The average temperatures for Jupiter and Saturn are estimated at more than 200 degrees below zero, and that for Uranus 301 below.

Mars and Venus have temperatures nearest those encountered on the earth, but observations by astronomers indicate there is very little oxygen on either. Bull, Dr. Theodore Dunham, Jr., suggests, it would be "unwise to say there may not be enough of both water vapor and oxygen to support life in some form which may have been gradually adapted to the rigorous conditions existing on Mars."

Dr. Gustaf Stromberg, another Mt. Wilson astronomer, pointing out the sun is but a star, adds: "Even if the other planets in the solar system are not suitable for human habitation, there may be innumerable other suns with planets where life as we know it may well exist."

KENNEDY STAFF CONFERS

Employees and executives from the 10 Kennedy stores, Boston, Providence, Worcester, Springfield, Hartford, Brockton, Lynn, Salem, Hyde Park and Portland gathered at the Hotel Statler for their semi-annual style and sales conference.

Cash prizes to the winners of last year's sales contest were presented by E. H. Presbrey, president of the company. John White, executive vice-president, reviewed present conditions in the merchandise market and their effect on future Kennedy activities.

NEW COAT MODELS

The new Kennedy-developed drap model coat was described by Harold L. Thompson, general merchandise manager and was enthusiastically received by the assembled salesmen.

The new coat is more conservative than some examples of the drap cut coat, but retains all the features of comfort and ease.

New blue greens and other new and subtle weavings of colors are featured in the Kennedy spring lines, making it possible for men to liven up their wardrobes without being gaudy.

SPRING STYLES READY

Because of last fall's demand for warm but light topcoats the stores are stocking more of the popular coat for the spring. Records of last season's sales show that New England men prefer rough fabrics in suitings, sturdy antique-type leathers in shoes.

All these are being amply stocked for the spring trade in the Kennedy stores.

Dutch Protest Nazi Plane Violations

BERLIN, Feb. 26 (INS)—The Netherlands minister to Berlin protested formally this afternoon against alleged violations of Netherlands territory by German war planes.

Yesterday a Nazi plane was reported to have engaged a Netherlands plane over the province of Noord Brabant. The German plane escaped southward over Belgium. A second Nazi plane near Woudenberg, east of Utrecht, was driven off by anti-aircraft fire.

Secret Radio Raps British War Aims

LONDON, Feb. 26 (AP)—A secret radio station calling itself the "new British Broadcasting Company" attacked the British government last night.

There was no way of telling whether the station was operating in England.

One listener said the announcer put a good deal of emphasis on what he described as the continually changing war aims of the British government.

RESINOL

"When tortured by nagging, persistent itching and burning due to eczema, or some other, asthenically caused, skin irritation, I'm the one that can bring you welcome relief," says Resinol.

Combining in an oily base, ingredients known and used effectively by many doctors, this soothing ointment goes into action at once when applied to irritated skin. Being oily, its medication stays in contact with the affected parts—easing stinging soreness, lessening the desire to scratch—and thus aids healing. For gentle cleansing Resinol Soap is excellent.

RESINOL OINTMENT AND SOAP

OUSTED from Paris because she failed to procure identification card, Virginia Davis, 22-year-old daughter of Meyer Davis, orchestra leader, was glad to reach Boston on liner Excambion.

Maestro's Daughter Flees French Ire

Her famous band-leading dad plays music the way society likes it—sweet and low—and she was forced herself to take a leaf from his book before she could escape from France for her home in America.

She's Virginia Faith Davis, 21, of Philadelphia and Brookline, daughter of Meyer Davis, whose society orchestras are the proper thing for debutante parties in New York, Philadelphia and Washington.

Virginia arrived home on board the American Export liner Excambion on orders that she must leave France at once, but for a while she was forced to sing her prettiest to prove that she wasn't a Nazi spy.

GLAD TO BE BACK

Miss Davis, who went to the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Leavitt of Beacon st., Brookline, before continuing her journey home, said she was glad to be back in this country after her experience in France.

Member of a talented family, her three brothers and sister being musicians, and her mother a composer, while her father is known throughout the East as an orchestra leader, she went to Rennes, Brittany, to study voice.

"I landed in Paris four days before war was declared," she said, "but I didn't see any reason for coming home. I had just arrived and I wanted to study. I wasn't interested in the war."

After a month in Paris Miss Davis went to Rennes and began her vocal studies under a famous singer, she said. About Jan. 15 she started for Nantes, some 20 miles away, to see the American consul about an extension of her passport.

POLICE SUMMONS

Police boarded the train and demanded her identification card, which Miss Davis said she had neglected to obtain. Two weeks later at Rennes she was caused to the police station and told she would have to appear in court.

Fred Waller, American consul at Nantes intervened, but Miss Davis had to go to court on charges of being on French soil with no safe-conduct pass and no identification card. The three judges, she said, apparently considered it a serious matter, and imposed a fine, but suspended it and placed the girl on probation for five years on condition she leave the country.

She immediately went to Paris, where her passport was taken up by representatives of the American State Department, and passage was obtained for her on the Excambion.

Budget Health Plans Studied

Well known Massachusetts physicians today began a study of the proposed plans for budgeted medical care under the direction of the Massachusetts Medical Society. One of the plans already has been opposed by individual members of the society.

Named to head the study was Dr. Thomas H. Lannan of Boston.

Others chosen on the committee by President Walter G. Phippen of Salem, who serves ex-officio, were: Dr. John M. Birnie of Springfield, Dr. James C. McCann of Worcester, Dr. Michael A. Tighe of Lowell, and Dr. Shields Warren of Boston. Secretary Alexander S. Bezg, of the Massachusetts Medical Society, also will serve ex-officio.

EVENING 'AMERICAN, Monday, February 26, 1940

Reds Crush Viipuri; But 2 Buildings Left

By THOMAS F. HAWKINS

VIIPURI, Finland, Feb. 25 (Delayed) (AP)—Ghosts walked the streets of Viipuri alone today. No troops were to be seen. Women and children were gone from the bomb and shell-wrecked city. There was no longer any reason to sound an alarm even when Soviet bombers came directly overhead.

There were only ghostlike armies in the deserted metropolis that once was the home of 70,000 people but now is the goal of the Soviet Red army, less than ten miles away to the south in its "grand offensive of February."

Sentries with rifles flung around their shoulders trudged between buildings without windows, buildings without roofs, buildings without floors, buildings with two or three walls off, buildings that are only charred shambles.

REDS GET SHELL RANGE

Only five of these ghostly soldiers crossed my path during a two-hour walk through the center of the city.

Two weeks ago several thousand persons still lived here and troops were quartered here.

Complete withdrawal began with the falling back of Finnish troops from their first into their second series of Mannerheim defenses, which permitted Soviet artillery to move within easy shelling range of Viipuri.

Bombing planes and occasional long-range shells caused damage almost from the start of the war, but it was the concentrated attacks from Feb. 12 to 20 that touched nearly every building.

The castle Tyrgis Knutsson built in 1293 to found the town and the modern railway station are almost the only buildings of size which from the outside gave no indication of damage.

FINNS' NEW LINE STRONGER

The deserted and damaged city of Viipuri is not, however, an undefended one. The Russian advance now is challenged by the second series of defenses, and Finnish officers say those defenses are far stronger than the first positions given up after weeks of fighting, in which heavy losses were inflicted upon the Soviets.

Our journey through Viipuri started from the castle and we turned quickly up a narrow, steep hill into the old town. Debris blocked the path and we climbed over to find one half of a four-story building had tumbled across the street.

The roof of the other half had collapsed. Wind blew in and out of glassless windows and whipped curtains and draperies over the street. A telephone base and receiver dangled by its cord from one apartment window.

The door of a shoemaker's shop nearby stood half open, showing a tin lunch cup and tray beside a shoe that was under repair before the cobbler apparently walked out and never returned.

"SOUVENIRS OF VIIPURI"

Broken bits of all-day suckers in gay wrappers lay in a heap in the corner of a shattered display window. Table lamps, colored luncheon plates and knives were scattered about a side window and the floor of a one-story wooden shop from which the front was blown out.

Books, "Souvenirs of Viipuri," Christmas cards and birthday cards lay in disorder through a wrecked bookstore.

The great double doors of a magnificent white church opened on piles of charred wood above which was open sky. It was impossible to determine where the pews had been or at which end of the building had stood the altar. Only the four walls with the gilded cross atop one identified the building.

Fire crackled from the Base Hotel which foreign correspondents frequently had used on previous visits there. Shells and bombs had struck it at least half a dozen times in the past few weeks.

Disrupted water service made fire fighting impossible. In the street, near by was a damaged fire engine, covered with snow and useless now. One five-story structure appeared intact except for broken windows until one approached the entrance. There were no floors—only a pile of wreckage inside.

WHOLE BLOCKS RAZED

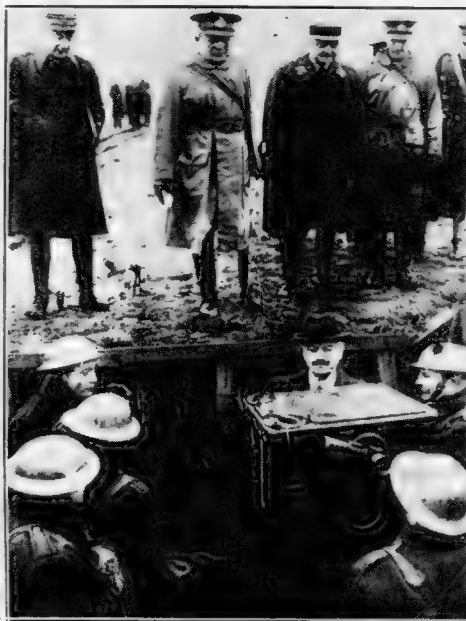

Whole blocks of buildings in the business area were burned down. Sometimes chimneys still stood, but bombs and shells had toppled many of these. While the railway station was intact, some damage had been done in the vicinity.

The railway, however, still runs and the phantom-like whistle of the engine was heard from the yard as we drove into the town.

A bomber hovered near for a few minutes during our Viipuri tour and once an artillery shell dropped somewhere in the city.

The rest of the time artillery at the front barely could be heard. Two weeks ago the noise was different, for then guns within hearing were firing at the rate of two a second.

Soviet fighting planes searched the highways during the day, however, dropping down to machine-gun traffic.

PEACE ENVOY WELLES, MUSSOLINI TO CONFER

undersecretary was on an official mission.

The flag appeared shortly afterwards.

A government communique was non-committal as to details or the significance of the meeting. Referring only to the length and cordiality of the conference, it said:

"The foreign minister received United States Under-Secretary of State Sumner Welles and the American Ambassador to Italy this morning and had a long and cordial conversation with them."

Rome's afternoon newspapers mentioned Welles' presence only in a few brief sentences, inconspicuously placed on the front pages.

Pope Pius XII will receive Myron C. Taylor, President Roosevelt's personal emissary to the Vatican, tomorrow for presentation of his credentials.

Taylor and Welles disembarked at Naples yesterday from the liner Rex and came separately to Rome. Welles in a private railroad car and Taylor by automobile.

Welles warned questioners not to expect any statement from him during his trip, which will take him to Berlin, Paris and London.

Neither he nor Italian officials gave any indication there had been diplomatic preparations for the journey, which, according to President Roosevelt's outline, is for the purposes only of observing and listening to what leaders have to say.

by the entire French press today.

All the newspapers emphasized that he should see for himself the "German treatment of small states."

The Petit Parisien comment:

"After listening to Chancellor Hitler and his accomplices, Welles will have an inadequate notion of what Hitler intends to do in the regions considered vital living space unless the American representative is able to visit Warsaw, Prague and Vienna and there confer with other persons than officials."

The press also advised Welles to devote similar attention to Scandinavia. On this question Excelsior stated:

"The first good action Welles could undertake would be to interest America more directly and widely in the welfare of Finland and Scandinavia."

Meanwhile the French commentator Pertinax said that he had found differences regarding peace aims in the recent speeches of Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain of Britain and French Premier Edouard Daladier.

Pertinax suggested a written accord between Britain and France on this subject "before seeds of misunderstanding are sown."

FEAR WAR GOODS GO TO NAZIS

LONDON, Feb. 26 (AP)—Fear that war supplies are flowing to Germany through gaps in the British blockade prompted a series of uneasy questions for the government in the House of Commons today.

One source of concern was figures showing that exports from the United States to Great Britain and France rose only 10 per cent in the last four months of 1939 over the same period in 1938, while they increased 47 per cent to European neutrals.

Ronald Cross, minister of economic warfare, who told the House last month the contraband control net was being "drawn very tightly" was asked "what extent concessions letting neutrals import more than their own requirements were during the edge of the blockade."

With the House extending its weekly schedule from three to five meetings, the questions were expected to be answered today and tomorrow, providing the government an opportunity to say whether some re-exports to Germany were being sanctioned for diplomatic reasons.

At the same time, informed sources said, Britain was about to complete a trade agreement with Norway—despite the still-unsettled issue over the Altmark case.

These sources said the understanding might cover an arrangement permitting "navicorted" Norwegian cargoes—those given a "passport" by British blockade officials before sailing—to complete their voyages without calling at contraband control ports.

In Berlin yesterday, the German high command reported that counter-blockade activity of German naval and air forces had sunk 496 allied and neutral ships totaling 1,710,315 tons and carrying contraband for Britain in the five months up to Feb. 20. (An Associated Press tabulation Saturday recorded only 425 ships of all nations, including warships, totaling 1,439,847 tons, sunk since the war began. A Boston Evening American tabulation of ships sunk from all causes attributed to the war places the total at 498.)

British, Nazi Fight Cripples Both Planes

LONDON, Feb. 26 (AP)—An official release today told how a Royal Air Force pilot had flown across the North sea and landed safely in England after a fight with a German bomber which damaged his rudder so it could not be used.

The German plane was reported too badly damaged to take advantage of its crippled adversary. The pilot was not named, but the plane was said to have had a crew of three.

New Nazi Liner Runs Aground

COPENHAGEN, Feb. 26 (AP)—The 434-ton German Hamburg-American steamer Orizaba, put in to service only nine months ago, was reported today to have gone aground at Skjervoy, near Hammerfest, on the north coast of Norway. The crew was reported saved, but the ship was said to be sinking.

The Orizaba was reported to have come from the United States by way of Spain to Hammerfest, from which port it left Sunday noon.

LONDON, Feb. 26 (INS)—The 4996-ton British freighter Lochmaddy has been sunk in the north Atlantic, according to reports received in London today.

The 458-ton British tanker British Endeavour today was reported torpedoed and sunk in the Atlantic off the Madeira Islands with five members of her crew missing. Forty-three survivors were landed.

"STRATEGY," SAY FINNS

In their withdrawals on the isthmus, where they have now taken a stand at their second positions of defense, the Finns continue to point out that they have done so strategically and only at great cost to the Russians.

They point out that the second line positions are stronger than those of the abandoned first line. One foreign military observer estimates that it has cost the Red army 100,000 men to reach their present position of threatening Viipuri.

Logan Brothers Out As Administrators

Resignations of Theodore M. and Francis V. Logan of Cohasset as administrators of the $1,000,000 estate of their father, the late Lawrence J. Logan, were accepted today in Suffolk Probate Court by Judge M. Prest.

In their place Judge Prest appointed a new administrator, Atty. John R. Kewer of Boston.

Kewer was a law partner of the late Judge Edward L. Logan of South Boston, brother of Theodore and Francis and co-administrator with them of the Lawrence Logan estate.

ASKED NEW BONDS

The court's action in accepting the resignation of the surviving Logan brothers as administrators came after Garret S. Hoag, liquidation director of the state banking department, filed a petition asking that they file new bonds and sureties.

Hoag's petition said the Bancroft Trust Co. of Lowell has a $200,000 judgment against Theodore M. Logan, and the Inman Trust Co. of Cambridge has a $41,000 judgment against Francis V. Logan.

The new bonds and sureties were asked on behalf of the banks.

WANTED TO RESIGN

Judge Prest called attention to the fact that the Logan brothers sought to resign as administrators as long ago as 1932.

No action was taken on their proffered resignations at that time, the judge asserted.

Atty. Henry Foley, representing Liquidation Director Hoag, said Hoag would not oppose appointment of Atty. Kewer as administrator, but would petition for a co-administrator to protect the interests of the creditor banks.

Judge Prest took this request under advisement. He wanted Atty. Kewer to be "taking on quite a job" in accepting the Logan administration.

declared that "Finland is always ready for peace." He was commenting on Stockholm reports that Scandinavian countries might be prepared to aid in mediation of the Russian-Finnish war.

"We would accept mediation from anyone if it brought us an honorable peace," he said, adding "that is what we have asked all along."

Girl in Surgery Trial Missing

plied, "but I don't know it as a fact as yet."

GIRL MADE STATEMENT

Bond said Miss Purcell had made a statement in the case to the district attorney's office before her disappearance but that such statement was voided in court unless she were there to identify it in the presence of the defendants.

Drs. Nymann and Carter were indicted July 27 on the charge of illegal surgery in connection with the death of Miss Spencer at Carney Hospital.

Miss Spencer, a graduate of South Boston high school, died at the hospital from what her mother believed at the time to have been automobile injuries.

Police were called in to investigate, however, with the result that it was allegedly discovered that illegal surgery had been performed on the girl two weeks earlier in a Medford home.

LEARY FIRST WITNESS

Called as first witness in the trial, before Judge Frederick W. Fox, in jury-returned session, Medical Examiner Timothy Leary of the Southern District of Suffolk testified that he performed an autopsy on the body of Miss Spencer.

He said he found a condition of acute general peritonitis "of recent origin and very active."

Under cross-examination by former Dist. Atty. Robert T. Bushnell of Middlesex county, counsel for Dr. Nymann, Dr. Leary described the type of surgery allegedly performed illegally on the girl.

Meanwhile a dozen other witnesses were sworn for the government and Dr. Nymann's attractive second wife was seated in the corridor outside the courtroom.

WHAT WORD DOES THIS PUZZLE REPRESENT?
Add and Subtract the Letters Given and the Letters in the Names of the Objects Pictured Fill in your solution above, one letter to each square, in the solution diagram that follows the equal sign.

Your answer to this puzzle, together with your solution to the five other Rebus Puzzles appearing from Mon., Feb. 26, to Sat., March 2, inclusive, should be brought or mailed to the Rebus Editor, Boston Record-American, P. O. Box 2058, before midnight, Sat., March 9, together with 10c in coin. In return for your solution, contestants will receive a special set of puzzles at the close of the contest.

HERE'S A SAMPLE PUZZLE

The Idea Is to Figure Out What Word the Puzzle Represents; Read Below and See How We Solved This One:

Look at the puzzle above. Interesting and amusing, isn't it? It's just a SAMPLE PUZZLE, to give you the idea of how you can win $10,000.00 as First Prize. Since this SAMPLE PUZZLE doesn't count, we have sketched in the answer and explain below how we figure this one out.

Add and subtract the given letters and letters in the names of the objects pictured. For instance, the first object here is a BELT. To BELT we are told to add the equivalent of 3 feet, or namely, YARD. That gives us BELTYARD.

From which we cross out the next object, a TRAY and the letter "L". When we cross out the letters T, R, A, Y, L, we are left with the letters B E D, giving us the word BED as the correct solution to this puzzle.

Note that the solution diagram contains 3 spaces, indicating 3 letters as being the length of the word. Also note the "whinecracks" of the comic characters surrounding the puzzle—all of which prove that our answer is correct.

AIDS PEACE DRIVE TO SAVE SONS

A Boston woman, mother of three sons and sister of a World War veteran, today was enlisted among thousands of New England women who have pledged to the National Legion of Mothers of America that American boys shall not fight on foreign soil.

She is Mrs. Eva M. Chase of 815 Beacon st., Boston, and she writes: "Please accept my membership in the Legion of Mothers. I have three sons from 18 to 25, one in the National Guard. I do not want them to fight and go through what my brother did on foreign soil."

Interest in the broad and patriotic aims of the Legion of Mothers was expressed in a letter sent in by Fred E. Erickson, 174 Bartlett st., Brockton, a veteran of the last World War. Asking for 50 pledge cards in order that his wife, mother and three sisters might enlist their aid in securing members for the Legion, he writes:

"I am very much interested in your movement and would like to see every mother in America a member of your organization. I have three sisters as well as my wife and mother who will enlist. And I am sure that we can secure at least 50 signatures. Mothers are asked to sign the pledge card and mail to Box 228, Boston.

By GEORGE HOLLAND

that sort, and if he did feel aroused enough to start a typographical fight, I figured he'd fight it as it was, and not engage in personalities and quote a guy in lines he didn't say."

The famous sports writer was quite right in that much of his "figuring" was based on 27 years now, the column of Saturday past was the first in probably ten million words of newsprinting in which this voice was raised in remonstrance against the action of another newspaper man.

THERE WAS CONSIDERABLE JUSTIFICATION, if Mr. Cunningham would give it more thought, than he was able to spare for today's recapitulation of the Tulane-Boston College item. . . I had been charged with tossing the interest of my alma mater to the blizzards, and, for a one-day "wowzer," as Mr. C. terms it, causing possible great loss to the college. . . One of the first syllogisms you learn in Elmhurst at Boston College is the one having to do with a "mother loves her son," and we all know what "alma mater" translates into.

Conversely, as poignantly as it is true with the more vocal Sons of Dartmouth, it is natural for sons of Boston College to love their alma mater, too. . . This obtains, in many instances, when the sons are not the type known as "professional B. C. men," the guys who break out with "For Boston" after the fourth highball. . . (Dartmouth has them, too.) Well, I was never one of those, nevertheless.

IT WAS NOT ALONE the sports-writer who charged me and my paper with violating a sacred confidence—as Mr. C. picturesquely calls it "the won't break confidence" method famous in the movies and the novels—it was Mr. C. himself who headed his column with the news of the dire eventuality that my "leak" might cost Boston College a home game with Tulane. . . All of this, when you are guilty only of doing your job, does not tend to make a chap feel very jovial.

please, Bill—Mr. Cunningham, who were we guilty of "crying"? In our column of Saturday last, you must have skimmed over in a heluva rush you thought you detected something which inspired you to write: "The guy's cried enough." . . . What we did say was: "Accordingly, we rest a case self-made. Take it or leave it—that's it, and with no apology?" . . . Where, if any, are the tears, or even the muffled sound of a choked-off sob? . . . But Mr. C. ended his column except for excuses himself from further debate—with the "crying" charge. . . Where he went wrong with equal emphasis was in his very first paragraph. . . "I wish . . . (he) would be a little more careful in the matter of stinging a column together in the afternoon journal he adorns."

THAT HAD ME WORRIED. I knew that I intended when taking the liberty of using Mr. Cunningham's stuff to show the difference between the objectionable yarn which accused this paper of perfidy in the B. C.-Tulane matter, and the accurate manner in which Mr. C. had hit the nail on the head in sizing up what actually had happened. . . My surprise was as great when Mr. C. said further along in his column: "For Goodness Sake, George, be more careful with your spacing, or use some such marker as . . ." and now comes Bill Cunningham who likewise had thus and so to say."

BILL, I MADE IT MORE DIRECT, EVEN, THAN THAT. . . After reviewing the lambasting we had gotten from the other source, here is the paragraph: "ON THE OTHER HAND—the exact condition of affairs was described in his pillar today by Bill Cunningham—" and then you were quoted directly and to the comma.

ondo of Mr. C.'s passages about "that type of literature" . . . He implied that Bill had been misled for attention (or circulation) by engaging him, The Great Man and The Big Paper) in an argument. . . Maybe there have been, but not by me. . . Like Mr. C., you truly has had a 100-million public for one literary effusion, and I think the picture moguls used four as ds of his dialogue whereas they salvaged three of mine. . . Anyway, this by-line has appeared for several years in a newspaper which has more circulation than Bill will be writing for (in Boston) if he lives to be 80—which I hope he reaches. . .

GOVERNOR SALTONSTALL'S campaign to bring new industries to Massachusetts should CONTINUE.

It is more important than political promises, a thousand times more auspicious than New Dealers' fantastic dreams.

It is good old-fashioned Yankee common sense—the same practical, down-to-the-earth wisdom that attracted mills and factories to this Commonwealth in the early days of the nation.

We had much to offer in the beginning.

We still have much to offer.

We can point with warranted pride to an unmatched labor record, a superior employment reserve and most inviting bargains in manufacturing sites.

Without exaggeration, we can boast of our natural resources, deep harbors, modern transportation and excellent climate.

But, unfortunately, too many persons who live in this State fail to appreciate these advantages.

The blight on Massachusetts' prosperity appears in many forms.

One finds it in the erroneous conception of duty which a few days ago induced Democratic Congressmen to place party loyalty above the welfare of New England and to vote in favor of a three-year extension for Secretary Hull's ruinous Free Trade treaties.

One finds it in the activities of State Senators and Representatives who impede industrial progress with confiscatory taxation and legislation which gobbles up profits.

One finds it in laws suggested by starry-eyed zealots who regard the business man's pocketbook as a combination of golden goose and Santa Claus.

One finds it throughout the careers of officials who look upon public office as a heaven-sent opportunity for self aggrandizement and enrichment.

HARMFUL INFLUENCES

of this nature encourage States like Connecticut to lure new mills, new factories and new jobs with such advertisements as the one which appeared this month in a nationally circulated magazine, reading:

No Personal Income Tax

No Sales Tax

In Connecticut

Of course, Massachusetts has three times as many business establishments as Connecticut, four times as many skilled workers and nearly three million more people.

But that will hardly excuse anybody's forgetting the significant fact that what this State needs most of all is a BUSINESS GOVERNMENT, not a government in business.

Governor Saltonstall's industrial expansion program will succeed only so long and so far as Massachusetts citizens, regardless of parties and political differences, MAKE IT SUCCEED.

AT LONG ISLAND HOSPITAL

Charles E. Spencer, accused slayer of a Boston optometrist, made the acquaintance of the dangerous drug marijuana, according to a statement attributed to the young man by police.

This is a very serious complaint.

The one place in which marijuana should NEVER be is a hospital maintained by the city for unfortunate people.

Three years ago Police Commissioner Joseph F. Tumulty told members of the Professional Women's Club:

"The marijuana weed is getting to be one of the greatest worries we have in Boston today.

"More than 85 per cent of the addictions that have been formed and are being formed are found among the younger element, from high school age up."

Progress in the form of arrests of pedlars of the drug was made at that time. Police enforced the law and obtained results.

Encouraged by this past success, police should renew and redouble their efforts NOW.

THE EAGERNESS

of war-threatened foreign nations to borrow from the United States is apparently equalled only by our willingness to lend.

In addition to the Chinese and Finnish loans, for which the American Export-Import Bank is being restocked by Congress, it has been disclosed by Federal Loan Administrator Jesse Jones that Norway has completed negotiations for a ten-million-dollar loan and that Denmark will seek "a considerable amount."

Every country wants to borrow from Uncle Sam, who earned the title of Uncle Sam in the last European war, and apparently is doing his best to deserve it in this war.

Why?

These foreign loans are all for war, or preparations for war. The New Deal administration apparently cannot find enough ways at home to throw away the money it taxes from the American people and borrows against the credit of unborn generations, but must throw it away on wars abroad.

Work

IT'S such a nice, sunshiny day . . . I'd like to go outdoors and play . . . but then, there's work that I must do . . . I cannot play until I'm through . . . For handsome is that handsome does . . . Work, we are told, is good for us . . . and Satan always mischief finds . . . for idle hands and idle minds. Yet, after all, I'd rather be . . . high up in that old apple tree.

On The Side

THE WAR OF 1812 was fought by United States to preserve the freedom of the seas. United States went into World War for same reason. But we still haven't the freedom of the seas . . . Charles Dickens gave Porter House steak its name . . . What was first auto you rode in or drove? Was it a Ben-Hur, a Moon, Chalmers, Chandler, St. Joe Forty, Moline Knight, Stutz Bearcat, Scripps-Booth, Pope-Hartford or a gearless steamer. Or what? My first ride was in a Peerless.

I AM no loud radio player but if I could get following on the air I think I would be tempted to give the volume knob quite a twist for the benefit of whom it might concern:

"If you don't like the stars in Old Glory,

If you don't like the Red, White and Blue,

"Don't act like the cur in the story,

Don't bite the hand that's feeding you."

"INSTEAD of loving your enemies, treat your friends a little better," said Ed Howe . . . The argument as to whether Jack Dempsey could beat Joe Louis or vice versa recalls Arthur Brisbane's laconic remark about the participants in one big fight: "A gorilla could lick them both" . . . Note some fellows smoking the same pipe day after day. Shows they know nothing of pipe smoking. A pipe smoker should have at least seven pipes. A different one for every day in the week "You a Good Wife?" "How Good a Husband Are You?" Such articles are cluttering up the current periodicals. How about an article "Are You a Good Son?" or one "How Good a Daughter Are You?"

A MAN marries again because he adored his first wife is what some say. Bob Fitzsimmons, boxing champion, was married twice. In his home he had a picture of his first wife, Rose Julian. When company came Fitz would press a button which illuminated this picture and say feelingly: "My first wife—the most wonderful woman who ever lived." This must have been a little hard on the second Mrs. Fitzsimmons.

SPEAKING OF WHAT is called cafe society, a veteran night night club operator said: "The old timers spent more and complained less" . . . There are theater seats which can be pushed back to let people pass. Why don't more theaters have them? . . . British citizen of over one hundred years of age stated he believed he owed his longevity to fact he always drank beer for breakfast. Beer for breakfast! The very thought of it makes me shudder . . . As to "The Hundred Best Books" one Mostyn T. Pig-gott wrote on the subject which starts:

Confessions of Rousseau.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

GOLDEN BEACH, Fla., Feb. 26 —I finished a book which I hated to put down. It is called, "Wind, Sand and Stars" by Antoine de Saint Exupery. The American edition of this book is offered in homage to the airline pilots of America and their dead. These men deserve high homage, but I think it is not too much to say of this book that it is worthy of the men to whom it is dedicated.

I THINK it leaves one with a better understanding of what it means to be a real man and why men must have a zest for life and yet a contempt for death. One quotation in the early part of the book is worth noting:

"To be a man is, precisely, to be responsible. It is to feel shame at the sight of what seems to be unmerited misery. It is to take pride in a victory won by one's comrades. It is to feel, when setting one's stone, that one is contributing to the building of the world."

"There is a tendency to class such men with terrors and gamblers. People extol their contempt for death. But I would not give a fig for anybody's contempt for death. If its roots are not sunk deep in an acceptance of responsibility, this contempt for death is the sign either of an impoverished soul or of youthful extravagance."

I wonder if some of our young people today, who rather clumsily express their desire to keep this country at peace and continue the efforts of their generation to make life more worth living, do not have this desire rooted in them because of their sense of responsibility for conditions in the world.

Some people think this desire is rooted in personal fear. I doubt that greatly, for I have known few real cowards in my life. Death is so inevitable that few people are really afraid when faced by it.

Inevitability calls forth a courage all its own, but a desire to live and face the difficulties of a world, which certainly is full of unanswered questions, smacks of this courage which accepts responsibility. There may be a chance that it is the courage which we need today.

I have discovered what is the paramount interest in Florida. Nothing less than the weather!

The moon on the ocean last night was unbelievably lovely, but it was too cold to sit out of doors. I left the place yesterday morning for the first time and drove about to have a glimpse of Miami, which has changed much since I came here years ago.

DOUGLAS REMOVES "DARK HORSE"

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—Elizabeth Hawes, the designer, has created bed-jackets for men, and Justice Felix Frankfurter professed a liking for them. "That gives me an idea," said Miss Hawes. "I'll design some of these jackets for the members of the Supreme Court. They'll look better than those black robes." . . . Frankfurter then suggested that each jacket bear a large identifying numeral, like those on football uniforms. . . . Miss Hawes decided, instead, to decorate them with individual symbols. She sent one to Justice Bill Douglas—with a little Dark Horse sewn on one side. . . . Douglas wrote a letter of acknowledgment, expressing his appreciation. "But I have removed my little Dark Horse," he informed, "and am sending it to Mr. Robert Jackson."

HEALTH DEPT.: One of Ferenc Molnar's friends told the playwright how much he missed his annual visits to the Spa at Carlsbad. . . . "I used to take off 42 pounds every time I went there," he explained. "Then I'd leave, and during the year I'd put on those 42 pounds again. Then I'd go back to Carlsbad, and 'ake those 42 pounds off again. Well, Ferenc, you know what it's like." . . . Of course I do," Molnar agreed. "It's like taking on and putting off a small jockey."

SCHOOL DEPT.: Anna Minot was graduated from Vassar last year. There she had attended all the drama classes, and had an important role in the class-production of Sean O'Casey's "Juno and the Paycock." . . . Then Anna came to Broadway, determined to conquer The Theater—but roles were difficult to find, and so now she's an usher at the Mansfield Theater, where "Juno and the Paycock" is being p. ented. . . . Last week the head of Vassar's Drama Dept. came to see the show and was escorted to her seat by the girl who had been one of her most promising pupils. . . . "Why, Anna," she gasped, "I hope—I hope this is only a stop-gap."

LOCAL NEWS: Franchot Tone will appear in the new Ben Hecht-George Jessel picture to be made in New York. . . . Gilbert Miller was given a contract last night at $1000 a week, to play the gangster in that movie. He'll decide soon whether he'll accept. . . . Hecht's choice for a mobster card player is George S. Kaufman. . . . Berni Balchen, at the Kit Kat the other night, stated that he's bought five million dollars worth of planes here for Finland.

ELIZABETH HAWES

MONDAY MUSINGS: Let 'em shell us out of the box, but the score isn't going to be 9-0 with Holland on the goose-egg end—by default. . . . It's that Tulane-Boston College story again. . . . Tulane is playing Boston College in New Orleans on the football field next Fall (in case you have been unconscious since Tuesday past or have misplaced your reading glasses). . . . News that the game was to be played appeared in this column before it appeared in type any place else. . . . It appeared here first, and the circumstances being alike, it would appear here first again.

YOUR TYPE-SHELLED correspondent, whom Bill Cunningham says today "wouldn't put pretty well splattered with muck" (note: three sports-writers, including him, have taken shots at us), got the story. . . . He got it in spite of a prodigious effort, of which he learned later, to withhold it temporarily from a million-odd persons who would qualify as that story's particular public. . . . And right here let us repeat that if we had been informed of these efforts to withhold the story—the interested parties would have had no more avid sup-pres agent than this same "muck splattered" (note: we shall see) correspondent. . . . No, we are not objecting to that, nor assuming any tsk-tsk attitude on a somewhat common practice of subordinating public curiosity to the interests of the interested parties, or principals. . . . For that matter, you'd be surprised how many absorbing little items which would shock, edify, enlighten or astound portions of the public are locked up in this cameo keyboard. . . . And big items, too.

WHAT WE DO OBJECT TO—and most dogs, edy — is the half-statement of a case, and the astounding casualness of a fellow like Bill Cunningham in treating a situation currently important to a member of his own craft—a craft in whose defense he has been always a fire-spitting advocate. . . . That is, at least, for those of the business he regards as "right." . . . And from the opening line of his essay today, (which reads: "I wish that skinny guy I've always liked") we must deduce that he has regarded us as "right." . . . However, we refuse to be (1) overwhelmed, (2) to be being made to appear (a) a weasel; (b) a sucker; (c) a patsy-pop-up-lately, or (d) a patsy-pop-off-any-time. . . . Hence it is necessary to disregard our friend Bill's dismissal of this incident in the presumptuous, unfair, inaccurate and patronizing fashion he most inconsiderately chooses today.

IN THE FIRST PLACE your correspondent objects to billingsgate in journalism as much as Bill does. . . . I guess Mr. Cunningham is advisable from here on. . . . Occasionally we have kidded back and forth in this space with other newspapermen over the years, but it has been just that—kidding. . . . When Mr. Cunningham writes today (in confirming a conviction of his): "I couldn't believe this fellow (note: me) was one of

GIBSON GIRL LEAD TO ANN SHERIDAN
By Louella O. Parsons

Ann Sheridan

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 26.—'S girls will all be wearing pompadours yet! We hope not if we have to add the old-fashioned rat that was so uncomfortable in the pompadour age. Ann Sheridan will do her best to start that style in "College Widow"—the era of the Gibson girl and "23 Skidoo." She has been chosen to play the lead in the George Ade comedy.

The "College Widow," first produced in 1906, is the story of a girl upon whom all the college lads showered their freshman love. It was made in the movies several times, but never as a talkie. Now that Warners have bought the screen rights, it will be produced with a musical score, with Ann wearing all the Gibson clothes of the fantastic bicycle-for-two era.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD: Ruth Foran and Gilbert Roland are enjoying the desert sunshine in each other's company. Mike Frankovitch, according to one who should know, has his nose changed and will shortly go into pictures. He and his favorite girl friend, Binne Barnes, are at Palm Springs, where he is recuperating; Barbara Road will get a divorce in Mexico and everyone will be surprised if she doesn't immediately wed Robert Coote; Eddie Albert, who loathes cats, suddenly found himself with six of them when Matilda, the studio tabby, selected Eddie's car in which to have her litter of kittens.

BINNE BARNES

EDGAR BERGEN is taking up horseback riding in company with Betsy Cullen Mahaffey. They are the guests of the El Mirador in Palm Springs; the Sam Woods hosted a party in honor of Jane Winton and her husband, Michael Gottlieb, and all of Jane's old friends were on hand to greet her; Rachel Field ("All This and Heaven, Too") and her husband, Arthur Pederson adopted a baby a month ago; Rosemary Lane is down with the flu and Buddy Westmore has sent her posties every day; Gracie Allen and George Burns have taken the youngsters to Palm Springs to get rid of bad colds.

CONSTANCE BENNETT closed her show "Easy Virtue" in Detroit and has gone to New York to read other scripts; it begins to look serious between Eleanor Powell and Merrill Pyle, who are out together every night; Saturday Bob Taylor celebrated the anniversary of his sixth year in Hollywood and Mervyn Le Roy showed up with a swell gag present—a photograph of Bob's first salary check on the M-G-M lot for $35 per week!

TWO-MINUTE STORY

I KNEW I couldn't stand it any longer. Hatred is a horrible thing, but I had come to the end of my endurance. Either that creature left the house or I left. I didn't want her to come in the beginning but John thought she would be company for me and the children.

Company! The children couldn't see anyone else when she was around. They rushed to her the first thing in the morning—their last caress before retiring went to her. Was I just a jealous woman, narrow and selfish, or had I been a fool to stand it so long? Whichever I was, immediate action was necessary.

MY HATRED of her had become an obsession. I couldn't live another day in the house with her—watching her saunter into the living room with her careless grace, her nonchalant air, her inscrutable eyes. It was her eyes that I hated and feared most of all.

One night when I was going into my room I turned and saw her staring at me from the corner near the stairs. She knew that I despised her and each day her manner became bolder, more insolent, there was a look of defiance in the very way she carried herself.

Shivers ran up and down my spine as I found myself imagining what it would be like to feel my fingers choking the life from that smooth throat, disturbing that maddening poise, upsetting that impeccable daintiness.

It was wrong to give in to hatred like this—it frightened me. It was bad enough when the others were there, when John smiled at her and teasingly ruffled her hair in passing, or when the children ran to her delightedly upon their return from school. But it was worse during the long day alone together.

I MADE UP my mind to speak to John. Surely he would send her away when he knew of my horror, my fear of her!

One evening when we were alone I told him what was bothering me and tried to impress upon him the urgency of removing her from our home. He frowned as he listened and I watched with apprehension.

Then he smiled kindly and said, "Of course she must go if you wish it although I think your fear of cats is just a little exaggerated. However, out she goes whenever you say the word."

Can you write a short story? Write one NOW. Send it to Two-Minute Story Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop Square, Boston. Five dollars will be paid for week's best story.

LISTEN, WORLD! By Elsie Robinson

HERE'S A LETTER. No, you didn't write it. But you're going to wonder, with a start, if someone hasn't been reading your secret thoughts.

As a matter of fact, they're the secret thoughts of thousands of sensitive, discouraged people during these chaotic days—people who are wondering if it's worth while to fight any longer, hope any longer. . . . if it wouldn't be more sensible to run away.

The writer's a man—49 years old—owns a small store. He has never been wealthy, yet has managed to make a comfortable home for his wife and three children, and even keep going through the depression. Now two of the children are married, the third in business for himself.

The wife is absorbed in club work and has a small but sufficient income of her own. She and the man have had little in common for years. He has no debts nor obligations—has saved a few thousands. And he wants to run away!

"NO—there's no other woman," he writes. "Nor any scandal that I'm trying to escape. I'm simply fed up with everything. I'm not a brainy fellow. I just plugged along and always took it for granted that things were going to turn out right. But lately, somehow, I have lost my grip. Everywhere you look, it is like a mad-house. Everything going round in dizzy circles. I feel like that fellow in Robert Service's poem—the one called "I'M SCARED OF IT ALL."

STICK—or run away? Yes, a lot of us do feel like that nowadays. And poor fools like myself, who have to write about it all and try to make some sense out of it—I suspect we feel that way often and worse than any of you. To duck out. . . . go some place where they've never heard of politics and let 'em finish this dog fight. And yet—

I hope I never do it. I'll kick myself through all eternity if I do. And it isn't because I think I'm particularly important. I know I'm not. Not one out of ten thousand of us is particularly important. But we've a job to do—and that IS important.

Meaning what? Meaning it's up to us, no matter how dumb we are individually—it's up to us to KEEP THE FAITH that started this nation—the flame they handed on.

I can keep on believing that we ARE innately decent. . . . ARE worth while. . . . that there IS a plan and a purpose behind all this pandemonium. . . . that somewhere GOD IS, and knows what it's all about.

Chorus Girl Aids Revue Beauties

When the lavish and colorful new revue, "A Night at the Folies Bergere," which features Imogene Coca, opens at the Boston Opera House tonight, its company will include some 60 hand-picked international beauties.

Producer Clifford C. Fischer thinks enough of his glamour aids to give them "protection" a senior chaperon, pretty enough to need a chaperone herself.

Backstage, raven-haired Karel Savory, who is half-Irish, half-Spanish, and who was born in Northern Alberta, Canada, discusses her unusual occupation.

"I have been to the United States before, when Mr. Fischer operated the French Casino and the International Casino in New York," she says. "So he is quite confident that I know all the answers."

"The show girls in 'A Night at the Folies Bergere' are, many of them, under 21, and quite a number come from various European capitals and have a limited command of English. Mr. Fischer naturally wants to protect them from undesirable, and often I have my hands full smuggling them out of the theater, away from lurking stage-door Johnnies.

Some of the girls are re full of high spirits, but you soon get to know the ones with a wild streak. On the whole, they're very well behaved.

there's their health to consider. It's not a good idea, in this wintry weather, for the girls to saunter out on the street hatless, or not warmly enough dressed. I have that to look after as well.

"Often, too, the girls are needlessly extravagant, when a word from the wire can save them money on clothes and jewelry."

ROBINSON AT MET THURSDAY IN ANOTHER STERLING ROLE

His Scientist Portrayal Hailed

"The Story of Dr. Ehrlich's Magic Bullet," Warners' frank presentation of a subject never before featured on the celluloid, should make screen history on the Metropolitan screen, starting Thursday.

Edward G. Robinson, who plays the famed scientist, Ehrlich, is said to give Paul Muni a run for Academy Award honors in this revolutionary role for him.

Another high score is rolled up by Ruth Gordon, brilliant Broadway actress whose performance in the recently released Raymond Massey starring film production, "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," is something to cheer about.

Others in a glittering cast are Otto Kruger, Donald Crisp, Maria Ouspenskaya, Montagu Love, Sig Ruman, Donald Meek, Henry C. Neil, Albert Basserman and Louis Calhern.

The picture takes for its central theme the almost insurmountable obstacles that had to be overcome by a struggling doctor before he could complete his amazing discoveries and make his many contributions to the advancement of science. Interwoven in the exciting drama is the appealing love story of the doctor's inspiring wife and their devoted daughters.

"Granny Get Your Gun," the second feature, is another Warners' picture. May Robson plays the gunning granny.

EDWARD G. ROBINSON gives a magnificent performance in "The Story of Dr. Ehrlich's Magic Bullet," opening Thursday on the Metropolitan's screen. Robinson's portrayal of the famed scientist has been hailed as of Academy Award calibre.

Radianna Tops Howard Parade

Radianna, radiant and copper-haired darling of Chicago's night-clubbers, is at the Old Howard this week in "Revels of 1940," big and brilliant burlesque revue.

Radianna, Amy Fong, a Chinese girl with a nice singing voice, and Aloha, a Hawaiian beauty.

Others in the cast are Eileen Hubert, tap dancer; Joan Mavis, dancer; Aileen Dale, dancing solo in brette; the Five Crackerjacks, Hollywood, moves into the Majestic colored comics and dancers; Connie Ryan, Pearl and Penny Damon, Jack Lamont, Lucille Sawyer and Fay and Richmond.

MARIAN MILLER has won the universal approval of the Globe's burlesque patrons. Her engagement lasts only four more days.

Selznick the Irving Thalberg award for the best picture of 1939 at Thursday's Academy Award banquet in brette; the Five Crackerjacks, Hollywood, moves into the Majestic colored comics and dancers; Connie Ryan, Pearl and Penny Damon, Jack Lamont, Lucille Sawyer and Fay and Richmond.

Blondes Galore at Gayety

Another blonde bombshell is adding to the beauty-queens, including Fatsy Johnston, Norma Martin, Gloria Young and the Saxton Sisters. The show's comics are Bobby Faye, Bert Markie, Mervin Harmon, Al Raitt and Jack Shaw. Screen features are "U-Boat" and "Zenobia."

BERNIE AND GRAY IN 'BAND BATTLE' AT GARDEN

Sweet or Swing? New Star May Give Tipoff

By SAM BERENSON

In that battle which rages between the lovers of Swing and those of the Sweet and Simple school, this column refuses to toss out its jaw truculently and join one side or the other... But how the public reacts on this issue is of definite importance to us...

and the newest band which the country has taken to its bosom would seem to cast a significant shadow of the shape of things to come... No Crosby, no Goodman, no Krupa or Glenn Miller is this rhythm maestro whose band has forefronted all popularity curves; nor, for that matter, is he an advocate of the syrupy sweetness of Lombardo and Jan Garber... We refer, of course, to Orrin Tucker, the lad discovered several years ago in a Chicago tea-room, and whose revival of "Oh Johnny, Oh" has catapulted him to the top of the pile... The fact that the Tucker crew and its gal-truths, Bonnie Baker, are undoubtedly on the sweet side does not in itself portend dire things for Swing... but the signs seem to be out.

Our nosegay of the nonce to Lou Walters, capable bandleader of the Latin Quarter, whose present situation at this smart continental spot have long had the town's tongues wagging... few spots, either in or beyond New England, have offered its patrons the consistently top-flight entertainment that the atmospheric Quarter has been serving to a clamoring clientele... The much-discussed Artie Shaw takes his first step along the comeback trail next month with a trio of waxings for Victor... the melodies will be swung by a new crew, however, for brassmen Rodgers and Freeman are now with Harry James, saxman Robinson with Benny Goodman... Lita Grey Chaplin remains as the Mayfair's headliner for the week... the chic Lita is not only a vivid personality but is also an entertainer of sufficient merit to draw down thunderous applause from the Mayfair's current throngs.

The really top-notch piano artists can be nimbly recounted on the fingers of one hand... Southland offered its first in "Fats" Waller... and swing-lovers are finding its second in the engagement here of Count Basie... this Basie rhythm is definitely a MUST for the week's calling... a slick crew, backed with an entertainment revue that shapes up as one of the best at this spot... a gaily colorful show scheduled to bow in on the night at the Brown Derby, where in addition to top-tickling music and clever talent local gadabouts may rest their eyes on a bevy of dancing gals who take second place to none along the White Way.

Action this fortnight at the merry Coconut Grove centers about that amazing comedy team of Marie Bartel and the Van Ness Brothers

TRIANETA, at Steuben's

Ethel Lynn and Goodrich & Nelson routed out a mighty pleasing floor revue... Tony Gardiner in the Melody Lounge is one of the town's top personalities... Benny Goodman, laid low with sciatica at a one-nighter in Worcester three weeks ago, has rejoined his band... for which a buzz!... Promotion genius Sam Golden of the Essex comes up with a brand new one for his popular oasis... starting this eve, Les Lowry, New England Table Tennis champion, and Mae Cloutier, the femme ace, will slap ping-pong balls at each other... after the exhibition matches the Essex' guests may challenge the champs... Jack Brown, Casa Manana bossman, reports that he has 89 Bowling League parties scheduled for this famed rendezvous.

"Down Beat," the Koran of the swing and carriage trade, editorializes this week on the infidelities of swingsters to their bosses... "when the men become successful, loyalty flies out the window! The more money they make the more money conscious they become..." An editorial not without point... but one which loses much force by the announcement in its news columns that Tommy Dorsey has just up and fired his trombone, his piano, and two axes!...

A novel bit of entertainment for the week at the Lawrence Hofbrau where your spine is going to tingle to the knife throwing of Gibson and Company... this hair-raising act is something unique along night-club lines... Cappy's continues to be an ace magnet for many of the p. m. set... this week's show is a top-notch, one which may well find an attendance record smacked down here... Ribbys carries on with its sparkling talent offerings... The highlight event of the week will be staged in Boston Garden, Thursday evening, when Ben Bernie and all the lads will engage in a battle of music with Glen Gray and his Casa Loma orchestra for the benefit of the Finnish Relief Fund.

The long awaited Gay Ninety Review at Ort's Grill is definitely living up to expectations, constituting one of the town's most hilarious take-ins... this show is a riot from start to finish, and biggie Ort is to be congratulated... That famed talk taker, Sally Keith, lingers on at the Crawford House... enough said.

Steuben's Vienna, room a good take-in... this week's revue one of the best that this spot has presented this season... Lew Conrad's tunes for the steppers... Clarissa, that clever dancing gal, is the featured attraction at the Bradford roof... One of the gayer spots for your attention is Blin-straits in South Boston... top talent... Ada Bullock doing nicely.

Leslie Graham, who headlined in the "Streets of Paris" at Dallas, Texas, fair, takes topbilling at the Old Fashioned Cafe this week... other potent lures are Joe Rust,

SALLY KEITH, Crawford House

M. C. and Mary Lou Harris... A sparkling roster of name bands heading for the Marlonette room at the Brunswick... Max Miller, beauty shop biggie, party-tossing at the Coconut Grove for his Harvard street shop crew... the Commons restaurant being warmly welcomed to town... Dinty Moore's, one of the more popular oases for the top-hat set.

Judy Adams, Coconut Grove dancer on way back from New York with a mighty tempting offer... the which she will not accept... and isn't it Ruby Foo who will open the Beachcombers bar in Boston?

I made a list of the finer points so I wouldn't miss a thing when I started to point with pride to this discovery. Fashioned of fine wale corduroy, that's not only very smart this year but always blessedly practical for casual clothes. It washes, you know! See the yoked shoulders and easy back you love—the free swinging skirt with the separate sport belt. Thank heavens for the handy pocket—the convertible neckline! It's a ready-for-anything costume for busy mornings at the office, lectures in the classroom, for ladies at home in the suburbs. In spring conscious shades of Aqua, Grey, Copernic Blue, Rose. This Dress Is a Hit With Smart Juniors at Only $6.95

Little wonder that lucky misses who wear sizes 9 to 17 snap up this smart young style the minute they set their eyes upon it. It's SO good that Jordan's have two versions—one with short sleeves and a bolero jacket, the other with bell sleeves in three-quarter length. I'm sketching both because I couldn't decide which one you'd like best. Aren't they darling? Notice the soft front fullness—the back has a zipper closing and a slim-fitting gored skirt. Here's the kind of a dress that's ready to go anywhere—perfect for dating or dancing—not too dressy for everyday affairs. It's especially smart in gray trimmed with hot pink, and I know you'll like it in black with white or navy with white. Both styles in size 9 to 17—either at only $6.95 in the Jordan Marsh Co. Smart Set Functions

By BETTY ALDEN

THE RARITY and variety of flowers worn by the ladies added a dash of color to the second in the series of subscription dinner dances at the Hotel Sheraton Saturday evening . . . Camellias, gladiolas, orchids and even the beautiful lavender and green passion flowers were used for corsages and the ladies' gowns ran the gamut of rainbow hues from red to violet . . .

Tables for these mid-winter parties are sold out weeks in advance and many couples entertain at cocktail parties beforehand . . . Enjoying the merriment were the Ernest Hendersons who presided over a large table of friends . . . with them were two couples of the younger married group who love to dance, the Wallace McI. Scudders of Sudbury and the Louis McLennans of Cambridge . . .

Betty Cram Scudder's golden hair gleamed above a black velvet gown trimmed with touches of white and topped by a red fox jacket . . . Pale peach and silver brocade fashioned Sally McLennan's puff sleeved gown which was topped by a full length ermine cape, and her husband, as dapper as ever, was resplendent in top hat, white tie, cane and fur lined overcoat . . .

Also in the Hendersons' festive group were Mr. and Mrs. Merrill Griswold, the latter in pale blue and silver brocade with rose camellias, the Magruder and Robert Storers . . .

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Starr were hosts at another large table and among their guests were Baron and Baroness Krug von Nidda, Mr. and Mrs. George Henderson, the James Thayers, Dr. J. C. Sluder, Mr. and Mrs. John Kennedy and the John Yerxas . . . Dr. Sluder, an ardent devotee of the waltz, glided about the floor a number of times with the Baroness, who chose a slim fitting gown of sapphire velvet enhanced by gardenias . . . Nat Saltontall cut in on her several times also . . . Mrs. Yerxas set off her reddish gold hair with a striking gown of gold plated satin and a corsage of rare yellow orchids . . . Rosamond Hamlin, also a member of the Starrs' party, was festive in crimson lace and tulle . . .

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Young, Mr. and Mrs. John Perrin and the Julian Leonard were in another merry group . . . Gold lame, simply made with bracelet sleeves, fashioned Mrs. Leonard's effective costume . . . Mrs. Charles Matz chose a lovely gown of cinnamon brown chiffon with criss cross shoulder straps and orchids, and still others in the throng of dancers were Mrs. Winslow McCagg, who entertained eight guests, Mr. and Mrs. Justin Dempsey, Mrs. Leopold Gruener, Mrs. George Whitney and Mrs. Donald Davis . . .

Debutante Succeeds in Secretarial Duties

IF DEBUTANTE BETTY LEONARD realizes her ambition to follow in her mother's footsteps and become an authoress, no secretaries need apply to her for a job . . . for she is proving to be a very efficient and willing little secretary herself at the Polish Relief Commission, and she also knows how to type . . . Instead of playing with paper dolls when sick in bed as a youngster, her mother gave her a typewriter and taught her the correct method of operating it . . .

Betty's practical experience as a volunteer at the Polish headquarters is serving her in good stead as a Junior League provisional for it's right in line with the work required of each new League member . . . At present she's working like a beaver on plans for the Polish Karnaval to be held at the Statler, March 13, to raise funds for homeless Polish refugees . . . Her authoress mother is Mrs. Winthrop Slade, and she is a sister of post deb Helen Leonard . . .

IN CASE you think Abraham Lincoln and George Washington have a monopoly on February birthdays we thought we'd mention a few prominent socialites who were born in the month of blizzards . . . Yesterday Tommy Leiter, one of the country's wealthiest bachelors, of Washington, Aiken and Beverly Farms, had a cake with 28 candles and one to grow on . . . and before the March Lion makes his appearance later this week there will be birthday cakes for Johnny Roosevelt, Alvan T. Fuller and Mrs. Katharine Crosby Choate . . .

ALICE M. LEE and Mrs. Nathan Talbot (left to right) in a preview of the charming gowns they will wear to the old fashioned waltzing party at the Hotel Sheraton, Friday evening. The affair, to benefit the Boston Symphony Youth Concerts, is sponsored by a prominent group of waltzing fans.

You Can Be Beautiful

Invigorating and Healthful

By ARLINE GOULD

HOW WONDERFUL it would be, on a day when you feel weary and haggard and frazzled as to nerves, to be magically transported to Nassau's sun-drenched sands . . . to plunge into the turquoise ocean and let caressing waves wash your cares away!

Alas for Saturday's children, who must work for a living, and whose nearest approach to a winter vacation is the picture postcard some fiendish friend sends back "Wishing you could be here."

We have no magic lamp, or we would rub it in the interests of cruises for everyone. But we can tell you of a pine-laden bath oil that makes your own tub a wonderful substitute for a tropical sea.

REFRESHING RELAXATION

This is a real Tyrolean pine and balsam oil which gives your body and mind the most refreshing relaxation. A tablespoon of it added to your warm bath turns the water a cool green and fills the room with the aroma of sunshine amid the pines.

Your nerves and muscles, "tied up in knots," lose their tension as you soak in your recuperating and invigorating bath. Your disposition improves, tired lines disappear from your face and life seems good again. We like to have a good, entertaining book at just soak!

This grand oil, moreover, softens even very hard water and leaves no ring in the tub. It leaves the skin in a soft, healthy glow and it acts as a deodorant.

IDEAL GIFT FOR HOSTESS

Not only that, but it has a therapeutic value. It is excellent as an inhalant in the treatment of colds and congestion, as its penetrating vapor is derived from the resins of the famous Tyrolean pine.

We hear that you can buy, for a limited time, the $3 bottle of this lovely oil for only $2.25. It lasts for ages, and we can't think of a nicer breast-and-butter gift for a hostess.

Call Arline Gould at LiBerty 4000, weekdays, except Saturdays, for information about this luxury bath; or write her at the Boston Evening American, enclosing a stamped and self-addressed envelope.

Birthday Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Monday, February 26

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY—A very likeable somebody are you, though probably too modest and retiring. If you have cultivated a more enthusiastic manner and keep your sunny smile in view, then we know you are popular. You are quickening to the perves of lively, overquick people. Capable of success if you have acquired another ability—that of concentration. Avoid damp areas whenever possible. Plain diet is best as a habit. Enjoy music—perhaps make it your hobby.

LUCKY NUMBER—Today's lucky number is 43.

LUCKY COLOR—Today's lucky color is auburn.

Send 15 cents and large self-addressed stamped envelope to Frances Drake, Boston American, Box 2236, Boston, for an individual horoscope, personal guide, and lucky calendar for the first month of 1940, giving the day and month you were born.

EDUARDO ALICANTE folded up his barber's apron, put on his white jacket, paused to slick back his naturally waved and splendid head of hair, then shrugged into vest and jacket. There was an old, expectant smile quirking the corners of his almost too handsome mouth.

"So long, dad," he said, touching the shoulder of the head barber, owner of the little shop on Greenwich st.

"Good night, Ed," replied the grizzled veteran, looking up momentarily from his work with comb and scissors. "Tell ria I'll be home right away soon now. I--"

But the son had closed the door. He waved, grinned back and then made for the subway, almost running.

That was the last the little shop saw of Ed Alicante, handsome son of the old Spanish barber on Greenwich st. for eleven long years.

"He has gone to Hollywood," said his mother, wiping her eyes. "Always he has been betting on the horses, and at last he must have won. He said he would go if--if he ever could save up the fare."

"Our only son, too. It is bad, Marie," said the father. Then and there he ceased attendance at the movies, which had lured away his boy.

CRAZY THIRTEEN!

So it was that when Marie Alicante wanted to go to the pictures she went alone. Not often, for old Pedro, her husband, had grown moody. She did not like to leave him for two hours in the evening. Usually she stayed with him, after tending the little fruit stand in front of their tenement home, all day, and cooked rice in olive oil for him.

"I am putting in two new chairs. The shop prospers. If Ed writes, you tell him he can have a good business soon. I feel I am getting old."

"Ed never writes," said the mother sadly. "I pray he did not fall sick or starve." She turned away, her eyes closed tight.

That was the middle of the fourth year.

Old Pedro's hair started graying into white. He was 15 years older than his wife, and now was feeling every one of his years.

He always had played solitaire some during the evenings. Then a customer told him about a man who once had been a great gambler in New York, Canfield. Ran a great gambling casino. Gave his name to a game of solitaire, which before him had been called Crazy Thirteen.

The Cast of Characters in "Crazy Thirteen"

PEDRO ALICANTE, who operates a barbershop. EDUARDO, his handsome son, who decides to take a whirl at the movies. MARIE, Pedro's wife and who longs for her son.

"Oh, you know the game. You deal out seven cards and then build, putting the aces up above when they show," said the customer. "Canfield used to sell a customer the deck for $32. Then for every ace and card built up on the aces, he would pay $5. Did you ever try to beat it? If you get 'em all out, you win back $260!"

"Yes, I've played it--Crazy Thirteen," nodded Pedro.

But that was his start on an obsession. Going home from the shop that night he bought a new deck of cards to take the place of the dog-eared and greasy ones he had been using for two years. Also he bought a five-cent notebook.

That night, while Marie watched wonderingly, he played fifteen games of solitaire, buying the deck each time with 52 imaginary dollars, and paying himself off at the end of each game. Then he scored the result in the little notebook.

At the end of that first evening he was $78 to the bad.

All the next day he worried over the debt. The minute the last client left his chair in the evening, he hurried home. Marie had prepared caporano--a halved sheep's head, with pepper sauce--but Pedro scarcely took time to taste it. He hurried to the bedroom, till the dining room table was cleared, and played his solitaire on the bedspread.

After a time Marie heard him cursing in Spanish. Holding her hands to her ears she ran out, and finally went to the movies. She did not return until after the midnight show was out. And when she came, red-eyed from staring at some one she saw on the screen, she was suddenly afraid. What would papa do? She did not dare tell him her terrible secret. And he stormed when she was gone too long in the evening...

She need not have worried. Pedro had played twenty-two games of solitaire. He now owed the game $115 in total, and had finally thrown the deck of cards at the wall in anger. He was asleep and grumbling to himself, when Marie came in, to lie off beside him--and to stare up into the darkness for hours before slumber came.

Her baby, her boy! Cheeks cadaver-gaunted, eyes round and spectral, she had seen him melted from a cake of ice! The play had been a strange one, "The Frozen Pirate." Eduardo had worn a costume of the Spanish Main...

MARIE FAINTS

That Christmas, which was the fifth of his absence, the missing son sent a package home for old Pedro and Marie. Presents. For the mother there was a beautifully woven and soft Navajo blanket. For old Pedro a case of the finest Eskeistuna steel razors, pearl-handled and engraved with the name of Alicante.

Pedro, grunting with pride, took them down to the shop and hung was just a stage nam Marie knew her own boy.

There came a time in the eighth year, though, when Marie fainted dead away right out on the Winter sidewalk. They rushed her over to St. Vincent's in an ambulance, but there really was nothing to do for her. She got up all walked home.

In electric lights outside the Sheridan Square theater she had come suddenly upon the name of Don Christo Rosillo! He was being starred with Kings Janson, in a play called "The Escape!"

Marie saw the play, but did not mention it. Now it was not too difficult any more to get away for shows. Her husband was wrapped up in his long game.

"I'll wait for the old man," he said, waving away an assistant barber.

the case open at one side of the mirror. "Too good to use on customers," he told Marie in private. "Wonder how the boy ever made money so he could waste it on us!"

The woman trembled, but said nothing. She hated the parts they were giving her boy. Always he was a gaunt, terrible looking derelict. Sometimes a beachcomber in the South seas. Or a dope victim in some den of Chinatown.

Fortunately, Eduardo was not using his own name. The cast of characters (for three years this alone) gave his name as Don Christo Rosillo, but, of course, that

He could not beat Canfield, though he tried his very best every night, and faithfully kept score. Now he owed the game $8439 in total.

Every Christmas now, the boy sent his parents increasingly expensive presents. Two $500 checks one time, which were gleefully put into the retirement account--the money Marie and Pedro would use, when time came for them to go back to the Old Country, and spend their last days in an olive grove on a hillside somewhere.

The next Christmas, the tenth, the decimal points had been moved one place, which were gleefully put into the retirement account--the money Marie and Pedro would use, when time came for them to go back to the Old Country, and spend their last days in an olive grove on a hillside somewhere.

give back that money, if our Ed would just send a letter," said Pedro gruffly, later. "I don't even know it's honest money!"

"Oh but it's honest, Pa!" she cried. "He's a big shot in the movie! Let's look in the paper. Maybe he's playing somewhere today, and we can go and see him. I didn't tell you, because he's using a stage name, and I didn't know whether you'd like it."

"Hmph," grunted old Pedro. "If he's honest, I don't care. But what'samatter with our name, eh? Allmame! It means scorpion, the fella with the sting in his tail!"

Pedro did go to see his son that evening. The play was a queer, inconclusive sort of drama called, "Lord Jim." The Spanish youth, now a gaunt-cheeked, shambling fellow actually 30 but looking 50 in the picture, needed a haircut very badly. That was the main part that Pedro noticed. He was frowning and silent all the way home. But inside the apartment, and seated down at the card table he kept always ready, he shuffled and dealt solitaire--and forgot all else in this great trouble he had heaped upon himself.

He now owed the game almost $20,000.

A week before Christmas that 13th year, a big, shiny car rolled up to the curb on Greenwich st., and an erect, swarthy, handsome man alighted. He strolled into the shop, smiling a little, and seated himself after removing an expensive overcoat, then his jacket, collar and tie.

FRIGID RETURNS

"I'll wait for the old man," he said, waving away an assistant barber. Pedro heard and smiled, but he was wearing his double lenses, and did not see very well. Came the time, though, when, still smiling, the swarthy man sat down and leaned back. "Just a once-over, Dad," he said. "How's everything?"

For a space of four heartbeats the grizzled oldster stood as though frozen. Then he made an odd sound. He took off his glasses with fingers that trembled, polished them on the apron, looked again. Then he was sure.

"Ed!" he said in a choked voice. "You... Ma...?"

"She's out there in the car, waiting. Make it snappy, I'm washed up in the West, so I'm taking a few months off. Going to England on a new contract in April, and I want you and Ma to come along. I'll only be there a year, and then'll we come back home here and retire. I'm giving you two that car, and you can take it along when we go abroad. Time you were having some fun. But go ahead, Dad. Let's not keep Ma waiting..."

With a prideful smile upon his face, old Pedro reached up for one of the brand new razors in the hanging case--the case which had been his boy's first present. None of the twelve blades there ever had sliced through a human hair, but one of them was christened now.

And as he shaved his son, the old man beamed.

"I'll have plenty of time now to play cards," he was saying over and over to himself. "I'll have the luck. I'll get beat to even, and better than that, I will win!"

hysteric on how the Finns owe their rugged resistance to Russia's massed mayhem to their athletic knack, their marathon hardihood and their agility on skis. The implication is that because the Finns, from babyhood, know how to woosh down a sky-trestle and go winging into empty atmosphere, or learn the intricate twists of langlauf and slalom, they have been able to foray over the snow, chop Russian divisions into hamburger and scoot safely away.

Skiing is not recognized as a sport in Finland. It's a necessity. For the ski is as utilitarian a part of a Finn's winter equipment as oilskins and rubber boots are to the Gloucester fisherman. The Finn skis because winter begins in mid-October and lasts until late May. The ski is his only means of locomotion over the celestial dandruff that falls three feet deep at a time. The ski is as much a part of a Finn's feet as his toenails.

I argue that sport, per se, has never been of any practical service in war, even though Lord Wellington credited British victory at Waterloo to lessons learned on the playing fields of Eton. That, in the light of latter day logic, is pure bunk, because 99 and 44-100 per cent of the English army has always come from London's Soho, the Scottish fens, the Irish glens and the colonial crannies. Eton was a mere goose-pimple on England's military epidermis.

Would the British hint that because the French had exercise, baths and fresh air, and lean towards the ladies, buttered snails and Algerian tobacco instead of cricket and rugged that they are busts in battle? The fact is that the Frenchman is the gold-durndest, toughest, meanest fighter who ever stuck a 3-foot darning needle into an enemy gullet.

Baseball Didn't Help the A. E. F.

I RECALL WITH WHAT WRIGGLES OF DELIGHT the Allied High command welcomed the first boatloads of the A. E. F. in the first World War. According to U. S. propaganda the war would soon be over because every American soldier could toss a 16-ounce Mills bomb with the same accuracy that Walter Johnson could smoke a fast pitch over the inside corner. Viva les Americans! They'd soon be pitching strikers with the little, steel-ribbed pineapples. But any alumnus of the A. E. F. will testify that there is as much similarity to throwing baseballs and hand grenades as picking gooseberries is to ice hockey. It's as simple to heave a grenade with a pitcher's delivery or a catcher's snap as it is to throw a watermelon down to second base and catch George Washington Case of the Senators. The American command soon realized that if American soldiers were allowed to use their baseball technique they might yank the little counterpin, "shake off" the catcher a few times and take their full wind up—by which time their troubles would be over. Also there was always the risk that an American baseballer would suddenly pivot and try to pick a man off second base, an especially potent worry because if they threw far enough into their own lines they might pick off a general.

Nor did the Americans ever really master the art of duck-winging a grenade with that stiff-arm-cricket-bowler's style. Their type of delivery consisted of a snark throw of the pitch-and-duck sort. They never mastered the suspicion that the five seconds allotted between pin-pulling and the time it took for the fulminate of mercury to leak down and detonate the contents might be only three seconds, or two, or one. Get rid of it!

A Bullet Knows No Favorite

THE MAN WHOM GENERAL JOHN PERSHING NAMED the best soldier in the A. E. F. was no athlete at all. He was a hominy hoeing, hallelujah shouter from the moonshine regions of Tennessee named Alvin York and he made the largest single-handed haul of enemy troops in the entire war. Not because he was a four-letter man in the local high school but because he had the individual gumption and devil-may-care brass to size up a situation and pretend he had a regiment hidden on the grass.

Not that I mean to argue that a finely trained, lithe, lean ex-athlete won't outwear a soldier reared on highballs and the hula. A finely coordinated physical specimen from Harvard would unquestionably outstay his undernourished buddy from the Southern share-cropping region, but I question that he would have more heart or intestinal capacity for a fight. For, indeed, many a pimply-skinned gangster has demonstrated that an automatic pistol is a great equalizer and it's the guy with the steadiest trigger-finger who wins at war and not the gent with the widest shoulders.

We had a mouse-like little mug named Sabino Savino in the Tanks, a kid with a watery eye, a flat chest and the habitual expression of smelling something bad. But he could keep a tin can in the air with his 37-mm. gun and pot a swallow on the wing with a Hotchkiss. Guns were his gift. And we had a magnificent brute, an ex-boxer named Steve Mottis who was a ripple of muscle and a rhythm of motion. But it didn't help him, because he was drilled through the head with a Hielie anti-tank gun bullet which went through the armour plate like the sides of a tobacco tin.

No, sport is a peacetime pursuit! It is no aid to war! The Finns are super-fighters because necessity equipped them with suitable implements; because they have been hardened by the rigors of simple, frugal national life; because their one consuming passion is Finlandia; because they are diligent, decent and disciplined and because they have a deep abiding faith that transcends fear of death.

HARVARD BANS BRODY, EX-MIDDIE, FROM GRID

Michael J. Brody, Harvard's new wonder athlete, will not be permitted to play football for Dick Harlow's eleven next fall, according to a statement made today by Bill Bingham, athletics director at Harvard.

"I have been notified by E. W. McKee, athletic director at Annapolis," said Bingham, "that Brody played football while at the Naval Academy. This automatically bars Brody from football while at Harvard as a result of our agreement on sports with Yale and Princeton."

OTHER SPORTS OK

"McKee also forwarded information to the effect Brody boxed and competed in swimming events while at Annapolis. He is also banned in those sports at Harvard."

"After Brody has been at Harvard for a year, he will be permitted to take part in varsity sports in which he did not participate while at Annapolis. This means Brody cannot engage in athletics at Harvard until next fall when he will be a junior."

Brody is a dashing athlete, and his presence on the Harvard eleven would have given Dick Harlow needed power.

BRILLIANT BOXER

Brody has displayed brilliant boxing form in gym workouts at Harvard. He is a heavyweight, and it is believed that he can defeat any college boxer in the country.

There are managers of professional boxers who believe Brody could be developed as an opponent for Joe Louis.

Stan Hack Unable To Report to Camp

Third Baseman Stan Hack telephoned Manager Gabby Hartnett from his Sacramento home that he would be unable to report before March 15 because of a minor operation. Hack told Hartnett he had agreed to terms but could not take any exercise before that date.

Bruins, Rangers Settle Hockey Race in March

By the Associated Press
Mark down March 12 and 14 in big red letters on your hockey calendar.

Those are the dates on which the current National League race probably will be settled, the dates for the last two meetings between the Bruins and Rangers.

The Rangers went to the top again over the weekend, winning two from the Canadiens, while the Bruins took 3-1 beatings at Toronto and Chicago. But the Rangers have only six to play and the Bruins nine.

Six Boston games are against teams that fill the standing's last three places and have practically no chance of moving up.
In last night's third game, Detroit's Red Wings whipped the New York Americans, 4-1, and thus made it pretty certain they will finish fifth. It gave them a seven-point margin over the Amerks with seven games to go.

BABY BEES IN FIRST SET-TO

BRADENTON, Fla., Feb. 26.—Manager Casey Stengel is wasting no time in sifting out the deadwood that might be eating heartily at a great expense to the club. He announced his prospective lineup for today's scrimmage between the Casey's and the Kelly's as the two teams are known.

The majority of the rookies are headed for minor league farm clubs of the Bees but the Class to which the players will be sent is something that Casey and his board of advisers are anxious to discover.

A last-minute shift was necessary when one of the players, infielder Albert Roberge, was called to his Lowell, Mass. home due to the critical illness of his mother.

Secretary Lewis arranged transportation and saw Roberge off on a train within 30 minutes after word of his mother's grave condition was received. Catcher Phil Masi will take his place in tomorrow's game. The lineups:

(CASEY'S: Mankovich, 1b; Slet, 2b; Wietsman, ss; Guldage, 3b; Yonkers, lf; Loane, cf; Ross, rf; Ant-lick, c; Johnson and Laman, na, pitchers.

(KELLY'S: Cooney, 1b; Masi, 2b; Barkley, ss; Andrews, 3b; Hodgins, lf; Bates, cf; Rowell, rf; Sandlock, c; Farly and Dangenhard, pitchers. Stengel found it necessary to assign outfielder-coach Cooney and catcher Masi and Andrews to fielding positions with the Kellys because he didn't have enough fielders in camp for two clubs.

Bees Off for Florida Tomorrow, Billy Weir Lone Player in Party

By BILL GRINES

Accompanied by nine scribes, Billy Weir, the southpaw pitcher will leave for the Bees' training camp at Bradenton, Fla., tomorrow morning . . .

Fortunately for the lone player, none of the scribes are listed as car-benders, so Billy should enjoy the trip . . . The Boston delegation will arrive at Bradenton late Wednesday afternoon, and it's a cinch that "Duffy" Lewis will be at the depot to greet the gang . . .

Fra. Bob Quinn's present plans are that he remains in Bradenton until the first of April . . . The Boss is very anxious to get a line on the youngsters who will be sent to the various Bees' farms and he's a firm believer that first hand information is best . . .

John Quinn was to have attended a meeting of the Inter-State League today but, having no news concerning the locale of a club for that organization, he passed up the trip . . .

ASK DAD, HE KNOWS!

Robert Beats Nag In Diamond Race

By HERB FINNKAAN

This is the fifth in a series of articles on ball players of yesterday whose photos used to come with Sweet Caporal cigarettes. Remember?

Every baseball fan of today has heard of the Lewis-Speaker-Hooper outfield of the pre-war Red Sox, and probably most fans are familiar with that great Sox pitching quintet of Ruth, Shore, Foster, Mays and Leonard, but they'd have to ask Dad or even Granddad who their predecessors were.

Well, there's a couple of them in Group No. 11.

Look 'em over:
Eddie Clotte, Boston Americans (later traded to White Sox); Fred Arellance, Boston Americans, a Mexican pitcher; Bill Carrigan, Boston Americans (before Bill became manager); Heinie Wagner, Boston Americans shortstop; Jake Stahl, manager of 1913 world champion Red Sox; Tris Speaker, Boston Americans; Harry Niles, Boston Americans (Duffy Lewis took his job); Russell "every ball" Ford, New York Americans; Jack Warhop, New York Americans; Jack Quinn, New York Americans, who was still pitching for Connie Mack in 1939; Manning, New York Americans; Felli, New York Americans; Tubby Spencer, Boston Americans (weighed about 300, didn't hit); Lake, New York Americans; Jack Chesbro, New York Americans.

MEMORIES . . . Clotte being combed for 10 runs by Red Sox first inning, only to have game saved by rain. Coming back next day to defeat same Red Sox, 2-1, in 12 innings. . . Carrigan catching Dutch Leonard. . . Walking under Leonard's nose. . . Leonard didn't dare cross up Bill. . . Heinie Wagner's knotted fingers. . . Guess every digit on both hands were broken some time or other. . . Carrigan and Wagner inseparable pals. . . Coming back to Boston in 1927 to manage Red Sox after 11 years absence from the game. . . Wagner taking over management after Carrigan's second retirement and going owner.

Bob Quinn the heel-jerkies. . . Two every-going. . . Speaker's curving left-handed throws from center field. . . started toward him at base, to bend around and land at base. . . Lewis scrambling up bank at Fenway like antelope, so cleverly that it was called "Duffy's Clift." In his honor. . . Doc Gessler running around old Durham sign in right field at old Huntington ave. grounds. . . $50 for hitting ball on fly.

A good trick with that old ball. . . "Don't forget those old Highlanders," writes in J. E. T. of Brookline. "The Prince Hal Chase at first base. Fritz Maisel at third, Birdie Cree, Bert Daniels and Topsy Hartzell in the outfield, and pitchers Jack Chesbro, Ray Caldwell, the underhanded Indian flinger. . . they were a bit of all right." Jack Quinn, at 50, pitching for Connie Mack. . . Willy Connie using him as relief pitcher, never before sixth inning, so that batters would face him only once. . . Old Jack had something different. . . Left field hitters would hit to right against him, and vice versa. . . But batters usually caught up with him if he stayed in there long enough. . . That's why Connie used him only in "spots."

GROUP 12

Hulswit, Louis Nationals (later Red Sox coach and scout); Charles, St. Louis Nationals (new one on me); Rhodes, St. Louis Nationals; Shaw, St. Louis Nationals; Gilbert, St. Louis Nationals (that's Billy, long New Orleans manager); Griffith, Cincinnati (that Clark, Joe Cronin's Pa-in-law, who own Washington club); Art Fromme, Cincinnati pitcher; Casper, Cincinnati; Spade, Cincinnati; Dubuc, Cincinnati (that's Jean, who became more renowned when pitching for Jennings' Tigers); Ewing, Cincinnati (this fellow's pitching, so it couldn't be such, the old caterer); Karger, Cincinnati (that's Eddie Karger, later of the Red Sox a southpaw pitcher who used to bat right handed); Larry McLean, Cincinnati; Hans Lobert, Cincinnati; Mitchell, Cincinnati; Bob Bescher, Cincinnati; Downey, Cincinnati;

Huggins, Cincinnati; Paskert, Cincinnati; Oakea, Cincinnati; Dick Hohlitzel (that's Dick, who later played first base for the Red Sox and who now is Dr. Hohlitzel).

CAPE ELIZABETH, Me., Feb. 26 (AP)—Archie San Romani, the Kansas middle-distance runner who has an ear for music, is going to join the staff of Cape Elizabeth high school next September as a music and physical education instructor.

'Angel' Tackles Mat Bad Man

Seeking his fourth straight Boston victory, that 270-pound wrestling gargoyle, "The Angel," will tangle with Ernest Franz Hefer, "bad man champion," in one of the main events on Paul Bowser's weekly show at the Arena next Wednesday.

The Angel defeated Rudy Dusek in his debut here, scared Luigi Baegalupi in his second start and made Bibber McCoy's flying tackle look like a puerile thrust in his third appearance last week.

Not that Franz plans to get on his bicycle, simply that the Angel's short legs are his weak point, and is working on several leg locks with which to pin the world's homeliest man.

In the co-feature Wednesday, Steve Crusher, Cady, world champion, will risk his title against Marvin Westenberg, who once held the crown when he operated as "The Shadow."

Other bouts will pair Bibby Managoff and Ralph Garibaldi, Frank Judson and Leo LeFebvre, Rio De Janiero and Jack Marshall.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Feb. 26 (INS)—Breaking a 3-3 tie in the last three minutes of an International American League hockey game played here the Springfield Indians pushed across three fast goals to beat the Syracuse Stars with a 6-3 score.

Bob McKirdy Passes Away

Bob McKirdy, nationally known figure in boxing and well known in political circles here, died at his home, 35 Chambers st., West End, of a heart attack. McKirdy was 68 and was employed in the tax collector's office.

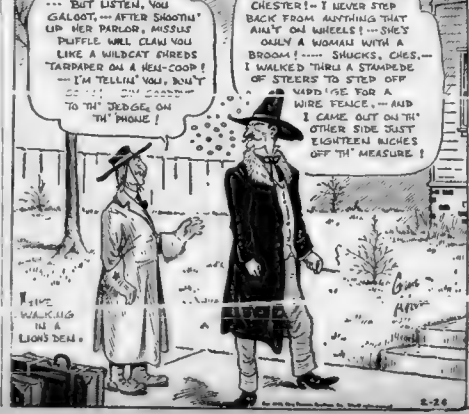

Born in the North End, he was the son of Mr. and Mrs. James McKirdy. Left an orphan at an early age, he was adopted by Mrs. Lomasney, whose lieutenant he became in many political battles.

As ardent baseball fan, he seldom missed a game. He knew many baseball players, as he visited Hot Springs, Ark., for rheumatism treatments a decade or more ago.

During the term of Mayor John F. Fitzgerald he became a deputy tax collector, resigning in 1915 to take over duties as leader of the Commercial A. C. Club. A lifelong resident of the West End, he had a wide acquaintance in that district. The wife of the charter members of the Revere Lodge of Elks and was made a life member. During summers he occupied a cottage at Beachmont. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Georgia McKirdy.

ROOM AND BOARD By Eugene Ahern

I HAVE HAD more than passing interest in the political success of Postmaster James A. Farley that now finds him being boomed for the presidency. I note that Attorney-General Paul Dever, Senator David I. Walsh, Mayor Maurice J. Tobin, District Attorney William J. Foley, former Lieutenant-Governor Frank Kelly and other leading political figures have gone out on the well-known limb for Farley.

One thing Farley's supporters may be assured of is that he will never cut the limb on them. There is not a person in American public life who has a better reputation for keeping his word than Farley.

I first met the Postmaster 14 years ago, when he was actively administering the affairs of the New York Athletic Commission. Jack Dempsey was heavyweight champion of the world at the time, and the New York Athletic Commission had rated Harry Wills, the "Black Menace" of his day, as the No. 1 challenger.

Tex Rickard did not wish to stage a Dempsey-Wills bout. He was supported in this view by William Muldoon, veteran member of the New York Athletic Commission. Farley, however, had another Commission vote other than his own, and so could overrule Muldoon.

Dempsey did not fear Wills, and probably would have beaten him. Rickard and Muldoon, however, were of the opinion that a "mixed" bout would be harmful to boxing. If Wills won, they believed boxing would be killed.

Farley, however, stuck to his guns, and refused to change his vote so that Dempsey could risk his championship against Gene Tunney. Farley Refused to Be "Fixed"

FARLEY ONCE told me of a conversation he overheard between a barber and one of his customers while his own face was covered with a lather of soap.

"Rickard will be able to stage a Dempsey-Tunney bout in New York," said the customer.

"Sure," said the barber, "they'll be able to put the fix in with Farley and sidetrack Wills."

Farley told me that so many people thought Rickard could run things his own way that he would not have changed his vote under any conditions.

"My own wife would have had reason to have been suspicious of me if I had shifted my vote under fire," Farley declared.

The match went to Philadelphia, where Tunney was crowned champion.

Farley continued to call his shots as he saw them.

When Max Schmeling broke his promise and refused to go through with a second bout with Jack Sharkey, Farley barred the German from New York.

"Let Schmeling cool his heels in the West," said Farley. "He will eventually want to come back to New York."

Farley was right. Schmeling surrendered to the power of the New York Athletic Commission, fought Sharkey, and lost his championship on points.

Farley Entered National Political Arena

FARLEY DID NOT attend the second Schmeling-Sharkey bout. At the time Farley was attending the national Democratic Convention in Chicago at which Franklin Delano Roosevelt was nominated to be the standard bearer of his party.

Farley had managed the Roosevelt campaign leading up to the Chicago Convention. He had toured every State in the country, had met thousands of people, and they had liked him.

Farley does not drink or smoke, but he will sit up with you all night in a hotel room or on a train talking politics or boxing.

The Postmaster has an unlimited supply of energy. He has a very keen brain, and the amazing ability to remember the first names of people.

When I first used to meet Farley in New York he would always ask for his friends in this city.

"How is Jim Curley?" was usually one of Farley's first questions.

When Curley failed to secure what he considered a suitable diplomatic post, Farley was disappointed. He felt Curley deserved a reward from his political party.

I know Farley was pleased when Curley recently made peace with Roosevelt at a harmony meeting held at the White House.

If I were asked for Farley's chief qualification, I would answer truthfulness. The sportsman, family, and even he gives his word to a person he keeps it. People who have spent their entire lives in politics often cannot understand Farley's success. Maybe if they, too, were so careful to keep their word they might reach the heights that have been attained by the Postmaster.

Farley Has Support of Al Smith

FARLEY HAS the support of former Governor Al Smith, who knows better than anybody else some of the obstacles with which the Postmaster will be confronted. Smith was Governor of New York State during part of the period Farley served so ably on the New York Athletic Commission.

I once heard Smith and Farley discuss boxing.

"Personally I do not care for boxing," said Smith, "but as long as the sport is legal in New York State I intend to see that it is run honestly. I know you will do so."

Smith never interfered with Farley's rulings on boxing. He knew Farley's decisions were honest, and that he was fearless enough to back them up even when under heavy fire.

It should be an interesting campaign for the Democratic nomination now that Farley has entered the fight.

DICK LEWIS
Hurts Last Night

Dick Lewis, Injured 'Pic' Recovering

By SAM BROGNA

Dick Lewis, Olympics left wing and former Dartmouth star who suffered a head injury when he crashed into the end boards by a rugged body check in last night's rough hockey game with the Atlantic City Sea Gulls, today was resting comfortably at the City Hospital.

Close to 14,000 fans were on hand as Lewis, the recipient of a vicious check late in the opening session, hit the back boards behind the Sea Gulls' cage and was knocked cold. He failed to regain consciousness until he was carried to the dressing room where he again passed out.

He was rushed to the City hospital in a police ambulance where he was registered as a "special case."

A bulletin, issued this morning, stated that Lewis suffered a bad concussion but no fracture. Doctors closed a 5-inch slash on his forehead.

Lewis is expected to be held at the hospital for two or three weeks for observation.

The game ended in a 2 to 2 tie.

Ruffing Admits He's Holdout

LONG BEACH, Cal., Feb. 26 (AP)—Pitcher Charles "Red" Ruffing of the New York Yankees admitted at his home he is holding out for more money but declined to say how much.

"It isn't any $5000," he said,

DOC CRAMER SIGNS; MOTHER OF BEES' AL ROBERGE DIES

Roger "Doc" Cramer, Red Sox all-star outfielder, forwarded his signed contract to Fenway Park this morning, thus reducing the number of unsigned hose to three—Pitcher Joe Heving, utility man Lou Finney and Pitcher Jack Wilson.

Wilson has already started for Sarasota from his West Coast home with his contract in his pocket, so he cannot be termed a holdout.

Heving and Finney may be more stubborn about signing. The 25-year-old hurler won 11 games and lost three last year while gaining great fame as a game-saver. He probably figures he's got to get the dough this year or never again.

Finney, obtained from the A's early last season, was a life-saver on many occasions for the Sox. His pitch hitting pulled out several games, and he did well in the outfield and at first base when Jimmy Foss came down with sinus, and later with appendicitis.

Mother of Roberge Dies in Lowell

The mother of Al Roberge died in Lowell this morning as the Bees' young farmhand was on his way home from Bradenton.

Notified yesterday morning of his mother's serious illness, Roberge entrained immediately for Jacksonville, flew from there to Newark, only to have the plane arrive late and miss the 1 a. m. train.

He was expected in Lowell later in the afternoon.

Roberge is a former Keith Academy captain and is considered a sure-fire big league prospect. He is a second baseman.

Last season he spent with the Bees' Bradford team in the Pony League, and he went so well he was promoted to the Evansville club this season.

John Quinn, son of the Bees' president, will visit Roberge while the rookie is home and in all probability will have him return to Bradenton after the funeral services.

ASK DAD, HE KNOWS!

Loberb Beats Nag in Diamond Race

By HERB FINNEGAN

This is the fifth in a series of articles on ball players of yesterday whose photos used to come with Sweet Caporal cigarettes. Remember?

Every baseball fan of today has heard of the Lewis-Speaker-Hooper outfield of the pre-war Red Sox, and probably most fans are familiar with that great Sox pitching quintet of Ruth, Shore, Foster, Mays and Leonard, but they'd have to ask Dad or even Granddad who their predecessors were.

Well, there's a couple of them in Group No. 11.

Look 'em over:
Eddie (Cotton, Boston Americans (later traded to White Sox); Fred Arellanes, Boston Americans, a Mexican pitcher; Bill Carrigan, Boston Americans (before Bill became manager); Heinie Wagner, Boston Americans shortstop; Jake Stahl, manager of 1912 world champion Red Sox; Tris Speaker, Boston Americans; Harry Niles, Boston Americans (Duffy Lewis took his job); Russell (emery ball) Ford, New York Americans; Jack Ward, New York Americans; Jack Quinn, New York Americans, who was still pitching for Connie Mack in 1930; Manning, New York Americans; Frill, New York Americans; Tubby Spencer, Boston Americans (weighed about 300, didn't hit); Lake, New York Americans; Jack Chesbro, New York Americans.

MEMORIES . . . Clotte being combed for 10 runs by Red Sox first inning, only being game saved by rain, coming back day to defeat same Red Sox, 2-1, in 12 innings . . . Carrigan catching Dutch Leonard . . . his flat out to box and changing . . . Leonard under Leonard's nose . . . Leonard didn't dare cross up Bill . . . Heinie Wagner's knotted fingers . . . Guess every digit on both hands were broken some time or other . . . Carrigan and Wagner inseparable pals . . . Coming back in 1927 to manage Red Sox after 11 years absence from the game . . . Wagner taking over management after Carrigan's second retirement and giving owner Bob Quinn the heebie-jeebies . . . Too easy-going . . . Speaker on center left-handed, throwing from center field . . . started toward third base, to bend around and land at catcher's knees on perfect hop . . . Foxway like anticlope, so cleverly that it was called "Duffy's Cliff" in his honor . . . Not there today . . . Doc Gessler running around old Durham sign in right field at old Huntington ave. grounds . . . $50 for hitting bull on fly . . . A good trick with that old ball . . . "Don't forget those old Highlanders" written on E. T. of Brooklyn. "With Prince Hal Chase at first base, Fritz Miesel at third, Birdie Cree, Bert Daniels and Topsy Hartwell in the outfield and pitchers Jack Chesbro, Ray Caldwell, Russell Ford and Jack Ward, the underhanded Indian flinger . . . they were a bit of all right" Jack Quinn, at 50, pitching for Connie Mack . . . Willy Connie using him as relief pitcher, never before sixth inning, so that batters would face him only once . . . Old Jack had something different . . . Left field hitters would hit to right against him, and vice versa . . . But batters usually caught up with him if he stayed in there long enough . . . That's why Connie used him only in "spots."

GROUP 12

Hulswitt, St. Louis Nationals (later Red Sox coach and manager); Charles, St. Louis Nationals (new one on me); Rhodes, St. Louis Nationals; Shaw, St. Louis Nationals; Gilbert, St. Louis Nationals (that's Billy, long New Orleans manager); Griffith, Cincinnati (that Clark, Joe Cronin's Pa-in-law, who own Washington club); Art Fromme, Cincinnati, pitcher; Gasper, Cincinnati; Spade, Cincinnati; Dubuc, Cincinnati (that's Jean, who became more renowned when pitching for Jennings' Tigers); Eddie Karger, Cincinnati (that's Eddie Karger, later of the Red Sox a southpaw pitcher who used to bat right handed); Larry McLean, Cincinnati; Hans Lobert, Cincinnati; McVell, Cincinnati; Bob Bescher, Cincinnati; Downey, Cincinnati;

Huggins, Cincinnati; Paskert, Cincinnati; Oakes, Cincinnati; Dick Hobbitzell (that's Dick, who later played first base for the Red Sox and who now is Dr. Hobbitzell).

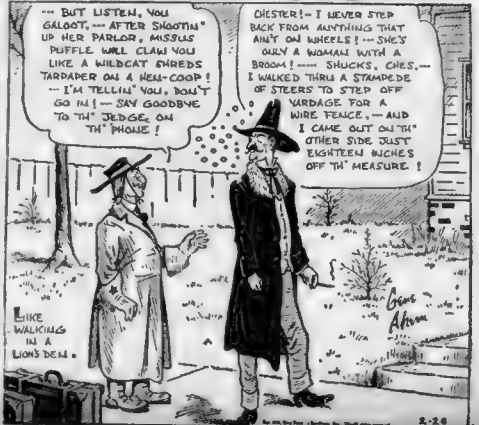

MEMORIES . . . Larry McLean, six foot-six catcher from Cambridge, whose irregular training habits gnawed at McGraw's inards so much he sent him down river to Cincinnati . . . When Max Schmeling broke his promise and refused to go through with a second bout with Jack Sharkey, Farley barred the German from New York.

"Let Schmeling cool his heels in the West," said Farley. "He will eventually want to come back to New York."

Farley was right. Schmeling surrendered to the power of the New York Athletic commission, fought Sharkey, and lost his championship on points.

Farley Entered National Political Arena

FARLEY DID NOT attend the second Schmeling-Sharkey bout. At the time Farley was attending the national Democratic Convention in Chicago at which Franklin Delano Roosevelt was nominated to be the standard bearer of his party.

Farley had managed the Roosevelt campaign leading up to the Chicago Convention. He had toured every State in the country, had met thousands of people, and they had liked him.

Farley does not drink or smoke, but he will sit up with you all night in a hotel room or on a train talking politics or boxing.

The Postmaster has an unlimited supply of energy. He has a very keen brain, and the amazing ability to remember the first names of people.

When I first used to meet Farley in New York he would always ask for his friends in this city.

"How is Jim Curley?" was usually one of Farley's first questions. When Curley failed to secure what he considered a suitable diplomatic post, Farley was disappointed. He felt Curley deserved a reward from his political party.

I know Farley was pleased when Curley recently made peace with Roosevelt at a harmony meeting held at the White House.

If I were asked for Farley's chief qualification, I would answer truthfulness. He speaks frankly, and once he gives his word to a person he keeps it. People who have spent their entire lives in politics often cannot understand Farley's success. Maybe if they, too, were as careful to keep their word they might reach the heights that have been attained by the Postmaster.

Farley Has Support of Al Smith

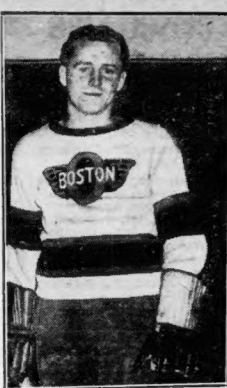

FARLEY HAS the support of former Governor Al Smith, who knows better than anybody else some of the obstacles with which the Postmaster will be confronted. Smith was Governor of New York State during part of the period Farley served so ably on the New York Athletic Commission.

I once heard Smith and Farley discuss boxing.

"Personally I do not care for boxing," said Smith, "but as long as the sport is legal in New York State I intend to see that it is run honestly. I know you will do so."

Smith never interfered with Farley's rulings on boxing. He knew Farley's decisions were honest, and that he was fearless enough to back them up even when under heavy fire.

It should be an interesting campaign for the Democratic nomination now that Farley has entered the fight.

DICK LEWIS
Hurt Last Night

Dick Lewis, Injured 'Pic' Recovering

By SAM BROGNA

Dick Lewis, Olympics left wing and former Dartmouth star who suffered a head injury when he crashed into the end boards by a rugged body check in last night's rough hockey game with the Atlantic City Sea Gulls, today was resting comfortably at the City Hospital.

Close to 14,000 fans were on hand as Lewis, the recipient of a vicious check late in the opening session, hit the back boards behind the Sea Gulls' cage and was knocked cold. He failed to regain consciousness until he was carried to the dressing room where he again passed out.

He was rushed to the City hospital in a police ambulance where he was registered as a "special case."

A bulletin, issued this morning, stated that Lewis suffered a bad concussion but no fracture. Doctors closed a 5-inch slash on his forehead.

Lewis is expected to be held at the hospital for two or three weeks for observation.

The game ended in a 2 to 1 tie.

Ruffing Admits He's Holdout

LONG BEACH, Cal., Feb. 26 (AP)—Pitcher Charles "Red" Ruffing of the New York Yankees admitted at his home he is holding out for more money but declined to say how much.

"I don't say $50,000," he said,

DOC CRAMER SIGNS; MOTHER OF BEES' AL ROBERGE DIES

Roger "Doc" Cramer, Red Sox all-star outfielder, forwarded his signed contract to Fenway Park this morning, thus reducing the number of unsigned Hoses to three—Pitcher Joe Heving, utility man Lou Finney and Pitcher Jack Wilson.

Wilson has already started for Sarasota from his West Coast home with his contract in his pocket, so he cannot be termed a holdout.

Heving and Finney may be more stubborn about signing. The 35-year-old hurler won 11 games and lost three last year while gaining great fame as a game-saver. He probably figures he's got to get the dough this year or never again.

Finney, obtained from the A's early last season, was a life-saver on many occasions for the Sox. His pinch hitting pulled out several games, and he did well in both the outfield and at first base when Jimmy Foss came down with sinus, and later with appendicitis.

Mother of Roberge Dies in Lowell

The mother of Al Roberge died in Lowell this morning as the Bees' young farmhand was on his way home from Bradenton.

Notified yesterday morning of his mother's serious illness, Roberge entrained immediately for Jacksonville, flew from there to Newark, only to have the plane arrive late and miss the 1 a. m. train.

He was expected in Lowell later in the afternoon.

Roberge is a former Keith Academy captain and is considered a sure-fire big league prospect. He is a second baseman.

Last season he spent with the Bees' Bradford team in the Pony League, and he went so well he was promoted to the Evansville club this season.

John Quinn, son of the Bees' president, will visit Roberge while the rookie is home and in all probability will have him return to Bradenton after the funeral services.

NEW TOTE SYSTEM AT 'GANSETT OVAL

Judge James E. Dooley, president of Narragansett Racing Association, has just completed a contract with the American Toteallottery Co., of Baltimore, calling for the use of the American tote at the 'Gansett plant for five years.

One hundred and sixty (160) selling machines are the standard upon which the contract is based and to these can be added more if found necessary. An clause in the agreement fills a long-felt need at 'Gansett, the placement of an odds board directly in front of the clubhouse.

Mose Shapoff will ship a division of 25 head, property of the Le Mar Stock Farm to Narragansett Park's spring meeting, according to L. J. Marks, owner of the farm whose horses' names always start with "M."

The "M" strine is headed by the greatly improved Ma-Le, a horse which has been whipping everyone in sight during the winter months and which looms an outstanding candidate for honors in the 'Gansett spring stakes.

The maroon and white dots of the Woolford Farm, highly successful last autumn at Narragansett Park, will again make their presence felt at the coming spring meeting, April 17 through May 18. Trainer Harold Hoffman will accompany a shipment of two carloads to Narragansett and following the close of Tropical Park and the winter racing season, including some of the top grade performers in the silks of Herbert M. Woolf, master of Woolford Farm.

Some six hundred guests will be present at the Biltmore Hotel, Providence, R. I., on Sunday evening, March 10, when the Experimental of Rhode Island, Disabled American Veterans of the World War, tender a banquet to Judge James E. Dooley, president of Narragansett Racing Association.

The black and white silks of C. Leroy King, one of the leading thoroughbred fanciers of the country, will be seen at Narragansett Park in the spring meeting. The King Farm horses, non-de-course of the King interests, are trained by Moody Jolly, one of the up-and-coming younger members of the conditioning brigade.

Moody will ship upwards of 20 head to Narragansett Park, and will continue his campaign throughout the summer in the Providence-Boston turf sector.

Among the sun-chasing horsemen now resident in Florida and California might be a charitable soul to spare a thought for the track crew at Narragansett. At the moment said crew are digging their chilly way through snow drifts that have clogged the roads around the big plant to a depth of ten feet in some spots.

Eagle Sextet Winds Up Against Tech at Arena

Boston College's hockey team which won its second New England Intercollegiate League championship by whipping Boston University will close its regular campaign playing M. I. T. tomorrow night at the Arena.

Boston University and New Hampshire will meet in the secondary game.

The sophomore-studded Eagle unit will be shooting for its tenth straight league conquest and the not so potent Engineers should prove a simple hurdle. Boston College, undefeated in N. E. loop play, will be after its twelfth conquest of the season.

Only Dartmouth (twice), Princeton, and McGill of the college opposition, have been able to floor the Eagles this year.

Coach Kelley will probably relegate his speedy regular six to minor roles and allow the substitute body a chance to show its prowess tomorrow night. Even first string netkeeper, Hugh Sharkey, who incidentally played a bangup game against E. U. will have relief. Coach Kelley, will give spare goalers Bill Sweeney and Vin Robinson a crack at tending the strings.

Though the vastly improved second line of Jim Boudreau, Charlie Sullivan and Ralph Powers will see plenty of service, Ray Chaisson, the record-breaking Eagle gunner who now has amassed a total of 64 points, will have ample opportunity to add to his already grand total.

"Bumpin' Bob Mee and Larry Houle, the sophomores hard guys, will complete the first string array, playing their usual defense posts.

Warner, but no case is ever accepted for treatment unless beneficial results are reasonably certain. Offer Camilli $1000 Raise CLEARWATER, Fla., Feb. 26 (AP)—Dolf Camilli, the Brooklyn Dodgers holdout first baseman, was offered a $15,000 contract this year, an increase of $1000, General Manager Larry McPhail announced.

He added that Camilli received $10,000 in 1937, his last year with the Phillies and drew a $14,000 paycheck from the Dodgers the following season.

In addition to holdout troubles with Camilli, the Dodgers have not been able to get the signatures of Outfielders Dixie Walker or Lindsay Deal.
